MANTELS

Which combine all the good qualities and all of the lesser ones are what we endeavor at all times to have. The designs are pretty, the material good, the finish most perfect, or less perfect, as the buyer may desire. By less perfect we mean less expensive. Some people do not want to pay as much as others. It's not every one who would buy a Mantel for $25, yet many would expect to pay more. You can choose which.

A Movement Gaining Force in Brazil to Continue the Pension of Dom Pedro—Matters of General Interest.

LONDON, July 11.—This is the day of the great review by the kaiser in Wombleton Common and toward that point have been marching ever since morning brigades of volunteers and battalions of regulars.

The kaiser, who is standing the fatigue from night and day experiences remarkably well, lunched this forenoon with Count Hatzfeld, the German ambassador at Carlton Gardens.

The diplomatic corps was largely represented on the occasion and the kaiser showed himself especially gracious to Sir Edward Mallett, the British ambassador in Germany, who was present, and to the Austrian representative, Count Deym.

The Duke of Cambridge, commander-in-chief of the army was in personal command at Wombledon.

Lieut. Gen. Sir Evylwn Wood, brother of Mrs. Wood, commanded the first division of infantry and Lieut. Gen. the duke of Connaught, the second division.

Major Gen. Neith Fraser commanded the regular cavalry brigade and the royal artillery batteries, the command including the royal horse guards, one brigade of regulars, consisting of one English, one Scotch and one Irish battalion.

These were all used yesterday in keeping order during the kaiser's progress to the Guild Hall and were encamped in Richmond park last night.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the kaiser rode to Wombledon with a brilliantly mounted escort, composed of his own staff and that of the headquarter staff of the army.

There he witnessed a review of the 22,000 infantry and the 1,500 cavalry.

The kaiser watched the march with a critical eye and did not hesitate to pass comments to the duke of Cambridge, who was by his side.

He spoke highly of the discipline shown by the regulars, but did not attempt to conceal his opinion of volunteer system as not calculated to promote the interests of the country in a military way.

He bestowed approval, however, on the volunteer companies that he thought deserved it and, on the whole, he appeared to be well pleased with the review.

He afterwards took a carriage to the Royal palace to dine with the Prince and Princess of Wales and witness a display by the volunteer fire brigades as well as special pyrotechnic displays.

A Rio Janeiro dispatch says that there is a growing public desire to renew the allowance to Don Pedro, the ex-emperor, on the same terms and for the same amount as when he abdicated the throne.

This allowance has been withheld on the ground that Don Pedro had not abandoned his claim to the throne and was still at work in a quiet way trying to renew his power in Brazil.

For some time past it has been evident that Dom Pedro had altogether abandoned any idea of the restoration of monarchy in Brazil, therefore the movement to renew his pension is rapidly gaining strength.

Capetown advices state that the Portugese are much alarmed over the attitude of Gungunhama, the most powerful of the remaining South Africa chiefs.

Gungunhama, it is said, has positively asserted that he would not recognize the Portugese authority, but that he means to be a vasal of Queen Victoria.

He has with him 20,000 warriors of the pure Zulu breed, and of these 2,000 are armed with the Martin-Henri rifles.

The others have the short spears and the assegai.

It would be difficult for the Portugese to subdue Gungunhama by force without much greater expenditure than the Portugese treasury could now readily meet, and the chief is defiant and threatening.

The Carlow election has not allayed any of the bitterness between the two Irish factions. It is said that John Clancey, the sub-sheriff of Dublin, has threatened to punish Tim Healy for his foul abuse of a woman, meaning Mrs. Parnell, and that encounter between the two is not unlikely.

Healy now alludes to Mrs. Parnell as "Kitty O'Parnell," and he seldom mentions Mr. Parnell without adding some vulgar allusion to his wife.

The Parnellites say there is a story regarding Healy's abuse of Mrs. Parnell, which will make a sensation if ever made public.

The brewers and licensed victuallers are forming a strong combination throughout the United Kingdom to upheld their rights in the face of a recent decision which declares that magistrates may refuse to renew a license without giving the reason for such refusal.

THE ELLIOTT TRIAL.

W. J. Concludes His Testimony Before the Jury.

COLUMBUS, O., July 11.—After being on the stand in the murder case a day and a half W. J. Elliott's examination was finished yesterday afternoon and the defense practically rested its case.

The defendant admitted the authorship of all the articles which had appeared in his paper attacking Osborn previous to the tragedy and they were given to the jury.

He claimed the trip he made to the World office on Sunday preceding the tragedy was not in search of Osborn. The revolvers were in his pocket by chance. Osborn fired the first shot from the region of his waist before the witness pulled the trigger of his revolver.

The witness referred to "beautiful liars" in his statements of Thursday, which he corrected by saying he did not mean the witnesses, but the newspaper reporters.

The defendant denied he was a member of the Clan na Gael society. He denied cursing a witness who testified against him while the witness was on the stand.

WILL BE NO COMPROMISE

Campbell Says He Will Carry Off the Honor.

Six Hundred Delegates Will Be at His Back.

The Governor Is Confident of Election and Is Pushing His Campaign Work Vigorously.

COLUMBUS, O., July 11.—Gov. Campbell is not much perturbed by the news from Cincinnati that he is to decline. He keeps right on directing the finishing touches to the work and giving the last orders preparatory to the final contest.

A correspondent asked him what of the situation. "Neal or any dark horse that they may bring out cannot possibly have more than one hundred and fifty votes in the convention," was the prompt answer.

"How about Cleveland?"

"Either Mr. Kline or myself will receive the votes of the Cayahoga delegation. Neal will not have a vote in the delegation. Some of Mr. Kline's friends were anxious that he should be in a position to be brought forward in case a compromise candidate should become a possibility, and of course his own county is ready to stand by him in the matter. But a compromise is out of the question."

"Are you and Mr. Kline on friendly terms in this matter?" the correspondent asked.

"We understand each other thoroughly," was the answer. "Mr. Kline, in this office, said he would not be a candidate, and told me that he would support my candidacy. Not twelve hours before he left Cleveland for Europe he said he would not be a candidate."

"What is the prospect for to-day's conventions?"

"Let me show you the situation as it is. Up to date I have pledged to and instructed for me delegates who will cast 334 votes. Neal has 90 votes. To-day 276 delegates will be selected. Of that number Mr. Neal will get exactly 10. Either Mr. Kline or myself will get the 41 delegates in Cuyahoga county, and I shall get all the others, or 225 votes, without Cuyahoga county. Why, now I have within 17 votes of enough to nominate me, and I surely ought to be able to get that to-day. But, as I said, I shall get either 225 or 226 votes, according as Cuyahoga county instructs for Kline or myself."

"Will you have any suggestion to make as to the platform?"

"None at all. The platform is for the party to make."

WORKED LIKE A CHARM.

The Lightning Rod Agent and Farmer Brown.

His Note for $250 Puts in an Appearance—Cruelty to Animal Case.

TIFFIN, July 11.—(Special)—An interesting case was concluded before Squire Rex last night after having occupied the greater part of two days.

Hubbard Howland, a resident of Republic and one of the best known horsemen in this section of the state, was on trial, charged with cruelty to animals in having driven to death a valuable stallion, the property of John Edmiston.

Almost half the village of Republic were present, and the fine of $5 and costs imposed by the court will aggregate nearly $200.

Last evening Mrs. Jacob Hunderlach, residing three miles west of town, was thrown from a buggy by a runaway horse and seriously, and perhaps, fatally injured.

The lightning rod scheme worked upon Farmer Brown, of Adams township mention of which was made in the BEE of yesterday, reached its climax late in the afternoon, when two confederates of the swindlers appeared at the farm with a wagon load of rods and a contract, duly signed by Brown, under and by which he was to pay $250 for the rodding of his buildings. Brown protested, but being threatened with prosecution, finally compromised by giving his note for $150.

J. B. Ryan Dead.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 11.—Ex-State Treasurer James B. Ryan died last night. He was for many years one of the most conspicuous democrats in the state.

LOOKS DARK FOR JOHN.

Wanamaker Called Before the Committee.

Bardsley Charges Him With Guilty Knowledge

Of the Crooked Keystone Affairs, and the Saintly Postmaster Holds Up His Hands in Holy Horror to Deny It.

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—The sub-committee of finance committee of city councils, inquiring into the failure of the Keystone National bank and the affairs of ex-Treasurer John Bardsley, held a protracted session yesterday afternoon. The main witnesses were Robert M. McWade, city editor of the Public Ledger, Wm. V McKean, editor in chief of the same paper, and Postmaster General Wanamaker.

As at previous meetings of the committee, the rooms were crowded to suffocation with men, many of them prominent in the affairs of the city, who stood attentive listeners to the testimony. Mr. McWade was the first witness. He said in answer o questions that he went to the county prison on Thursday, June 18 and interviewed the imprisoned ex-city treasurer. Bardsley talked freely and understood that the interview was for publication.

He told Bardsley at the beginning that in view of certain charges that had been made in the newspapers he thought it proper for him to make a full statement; particularly as to what became of the $945,000 deposited and which had disappeared, the charge being made that it had been stolen.

After Mr. McWade had written out the first statement he said a consultation was held between Mr. McKean, himself and another member of the editorial force of the Ledger, and, after full deliberation and discussion, it was decided not to publish it, because strong reference, unsupported by facts, was made to certain people.

It was decided by a vote of five to two to at once listen to the public reading of the statements.

Mr. McWade was asked to read the papers, which he willingly consented to do. Much that Bardsley told to McWade was afterwards incorporated in the statement he read in court when called up for sentence, June 23, and which has already been published. In these Bardsley again went over the story of the Keystone bank, and stoutly maintained that he put the $930,000 in the bank, but did not know what became of it, any more than he believed that President Marsh got it. Bardsley said that Bank Examiner Drew had been a heavy borrower from the Keystone bank, and was completely under Lucas' and Marsh's thumb.

In regard to John Wanamaker, Bardsley said that Marsh told him that he knowingly held over-issued shares of bank stock and demanded $100,000 for them and upset the plans for reorganizing the bank. Bardsley then said that he advised Marsh to engage counsel and make a demand on Wanamaker for the over-issued shares, as he was guilty of a crime in holding them. Marsh retained Mayor Sulzberger and John G. Johnson as his counsel, and they made a demand on Wanamaker, which he refused. Wanamaker's proposition was that the Lucas estate should pay him $50,000, Marsh $25,000 and the bank $25,000.

The officers then notified Mr. Wanamaker that if the fraudulent shares were not delivered to them by a specified date they would resort to legal measures to get them.

The shares were then turned over without delay. Wanamaker had made a threat that he would see Comtroller Lacey in Washington and have the bank closed before they excepted it.

In March, 1890, said Bardsley, Marsh came to me and said Wanamaker wanted $200,000 at once. Marsh told him that he did not have the amount on hand and Wanamaker told him where he could get it. Two days later Marsh came to me and said that Wanamaker was persistent and must have the money. I loaned him the money and Wanamaker got it.

Bardsley is accredited with having spoken of Col. McClure, of the Times, in the following manner:

"When I was a candidate for city treasurer I called on Col. McClure and told him everything in my past life, and said that if he would say so, I would withdraw. He said: 'Go ahead. The Times will be for you.' But he weakened afterwards. You remember the scheme to get the gas works from the city. Well, McClure was in that McClure was to get a big block of the stock for his advocacy in his paper, and was not to pay a cent for it. McClure was also in a number of other schemes."

Postmaster General Wanamaker, who had entered the room while Bardsley's statement was being read, then stepped forward and requested that he be allowed to testify.

"I have," he said, "been anxious to appear ever since the question was raised regarding the stock of which I previously testified."

In answer to questions, he said that his interest in the Keystone bank arose out of his acquaintance with President Lucas and his brother when they were young merchants. He stated that he never pledged the over-issued stock after he was told it was an over-issue and it was out of his hands at the time. He did not know H. H. Yard, and had never met Mrs. Lucas but once, and that was at an interview about the over-issue stock.

He was asked to give an account of what transpired between him and Marsh at Washington, and he did so, stating that he asked him to assist the bank and he declined, saying matters must take their course. Mr. Wanamaker said that the balance of his account in the Keystone bank at the time of the run was $10,000, and when it closed it was much larger. The last money received from the bank was about a year before the bank was closed, and the last discount was obtained in Octobr, 1890. As to the story told by Bardsley to McWade that he had threatened to close the bank unless he was paid for an over-issued stock, and that Lawyer Sulzberger and Johnson had forced him to return it, Mr. Wanamaker said was absolutely false.

Grenville B. Haines and Samuel B. Huey came to Washington to see him about the over issued stock and he told him he must settle for it, and if they did not in justice to himself he should inform the comptroller of the currency. After he bank closed he gave up the stock.

Bardsley's statement that Marsh obtained from him $200,000 for Wanamaker in March, 1890, he said, was absolutely untrue and without the slightest foundation and invited the committee to inspect his books.

Mr. Wanamaker was then informed by a member of the committee that during their examination of the stock book of the Keystone bank they had found 3,300 shares of stock in his name in addition to the 2,515 shares which he testified had been given him by Lucas to use as collateral for a deal in Reading stock.

"When I appeared before this committee before," said Mr. Wanamaker, "I confined myself principally to the business of the firm in my deals with Lucas in Reading. I had in my head certain private matters, but did not suppose the committee wanted to hear of private operations."

In regard to the stock which had been found in his name, 625 shares of it, Mr. Wanamaker said, was held by Irvin & Toland, his bankers, as collateral. This reduced it to 2,000 shares of stock. Of these five blocks of 200 shares each were dated March 3, 1886, and while issued in his name, the power of attorney had never been endorsed by him and they never could have been used. Of these shares he had absolutely no knowledge. The next lot, five blocks of 200 shares each, was dated four weeks earlier, February 3, 1886. He was a director in the Girard Trust company and Lucas came to him and asked him to obtain him a loan of $40,000 on the stock. "I have been just foolish enough," said Mr. Wanamaker, "all my life to do those things, and I got the money on the stock and gave it to him. A considerable time afterward it was paid off by the Lucas estate and they got the stock back."

Mr. Wanamaker also presented the committee with a letter from John C. Lucas, dated May 28, 1886, enclosing a check to pay the interest on this loan. Of the other unused five blocks of stock, said Mr. Wanamaker, my impression is that Mr. Lucas at first intended to ask for a larger loan and so issued them. It was never used, however, as it could not have been without my endorsement. I know of no other stock, but I remember that 10 years ago, when Lucas was securing control of the bank, he came to me and said he did not want people to know who certain stock belonged to, and for a time he placed some in my name. In regard to certificate No. 450, which was transferred by H. H. Yard to Scudder & Durham, of Trenton, that is a part of the stock on which the loan from the Girard Trust company was secured, and after the Lucas estate got it back it was very likely passed over to Yard again to raise money on.

In closing his testimony Mr. Wanamaker read letters from Comptroller Lacey and Assistant Secretary Nettleton to show that he had never influenced or delayed the appointment for an instant of a receiver for the Keystone bank.

CORROBORATES BARDSLEY.

Marsh Told the Story to Lacey Many Months Ago.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—A correspondent called on Comptroller Lacey last night in regard to Bardsley's statement that Marsh had made a clean breast of the whole matter of over-issued stock held by Wanamaker.

The comptroller said that Marsh had made a long statement.

Marsh told him on the evening of March 19 that he had been for some time negotiating for the return of the over-issued stock; that an agreement had at one time been entered into with Wanamaker, which involved the delivery of money and property to the latter on or before a certain date, but the delivery was not made at the time agreed on, and thereupon Mr. Wanamaker declined to carry it out.

The value of the consideration named the comptroller did not remember, but he thought it did not exceed $50,000. Nothing was said about any threatened prosecution of Mr. Wanamaker.

THE PRESSURE AT WORK.

Bardsley Forced to Deny that He Made a Confession.

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—(Special)—Such a pressure has been brought to bear on Bardsley, doubtless with a promise of pardon later on, that he now denies that he made the confession which the editors of the Ledger claim they refused to publish.

This, in face of the fact that Marsh told Wanamaker the same story, and that McWade testified that the statement was given him by Bardsley, only goes to show the enormity of the crime which the present administration is trying to cover up, and the steps that will be taken to prevent the public from knowing the whole of the matter.

Wanamaker forgets that there is a democratic house coming into power, with which his advertising contracts will have no influence.

HIS BOOTY IN A CAVE.

Fruitless Search for Robber Richardson.

His Hiding Place Discovered—His Intention to Steal His Wife and Keep Her a Prisoner.

ISLIP, L. I., July 11.—Nearly two hundred men armed with shotguns, rifles and revolvers, scoured the woods and swamps north of here yesterday for Tom Richardson, who has recently held the country in terror by his bold robberies.

They failed to catch the robber, but discovered two cunningly constructed caves in which he has concealed the booty of numerous robberies and in one of which it is supposed he wished to cage his wife after he succeeded in abducting her forcibly from her father's home, where she fled for refuge some months ago.

This cave was furnished in a comfortable and almost luxurious style and was evidently intended for a long occupancy. The most significant thing in this strange residence was a chain securely fastened to a stake firmly driven into the ground.

These preparations for securing a prisoner led to the belief that his wife was his intended victim. The hunt for Richardson will be continued to-day.

Could Not Convict.

MALDEN, Mass., July 11.—Dr. French, charged with criminal malpractice upon Isabella Huntley, and Hannah Sutherland, an alleged accessory thereto, were to-day discharged owing to insufficient evidence.

Several weeks ago the Huntly girl disappeared and the police have since been unable to find any trace of her.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Third Day of the Minneapolis Convention.

Up at 6 O'clock in the Morning They Put in a Full Day in Deliberating.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 11.—This is the third day of the great international convention of Christian Endeavor. The proceedings of the day were inaugurated at 6:30 o'clock this morning with a prayer meeting conducted by Miss Grace Livingston, of Winter Park, Fla. At 9 o'clock the delegates met in regular business session, and after the usual religious exercises reports from the world-wide field were made by General Secretary Baer. He gave some interesting details of the growth of the movement in England and presented particularly encouraging figures from Japan. On February 2d the Christian Endeavor societies in that country celebrated their decennial anniversary of the first society, meetings being held at Kobae, Okayala, Kumamote, and Kyoto. The native churches are also organizing the young people into Christian Endeavor societies. The growth of the movement in Australian colonies was also dealt upon.

After a prayer service, conducted by Rev. W. H. McClain, of St. Louis. There was a symposium of pastors. This proved to be one of the most interesting events of the meeting, the different denominations represented by the speakers developing the widespread interest in the movement and the fraternal good fellowship that is manifested.

The morning session was brought to a close with a short but interesting address by Dr. A. A. Fulton, of Canton, China, upon the "Society for all the World."

IT WAS HIS DEATH-BED.

He Got Full and Took a Snooze on the Railroad Track.

HOLGATE, July 11.—(Special)—Edwin van Vlerah was buried Monday afternoon. Developments show that he was intoxicated and lying on the railroad track asleep when the north bound passenger on the Clover Leaf struck him, killing him instantly.

Came Out Into the River.

NEW YORK, July 11.—At 7:30 this morning the body of Thomas Jenney, aged 35, whose residence is unknown, was found at the mouth of the Twenty-third street sewer in the East river. He is supposed to have been the man who committed suicide by jumping into the manhole on east Twenty-sixth street. The body was taken to the morgue.

A Shipwrecked Crew.

NEW YORK, July 11.—The steamship Sweatentower, which arrived to-day, had on board the captain and five of the crew of the British bark Breiz Isel that was wrecked at Mina island on the 5th of June last.

Lost a Finger.

NORWALK, July 11.—(Special)—A young man named Hearson had a finger cut off in the Laning Printing company's works this morning.

NOT ONE LEFT ALIVE.

Husband, Wife and Four Children Killed.

Horrible Sight Presented to a Lady on a Visit to the Home of Her Brother.

ELLIS, Neb., July 11.—Some time during Thursday night the most horrible tragedy ever enacted in Gage county, or this section of Nebraska, occurred. About 4 o'clock that afternoon Mrs. Dr. Allen, of Beatrice, came to Ellis on a visit to her brother, John H. Puterbaugh, who lived a mile and a half south of town.

She was driven to the farm by Louis Perling and knocked at the door, but receiving no response entered, the door not being locked.

As she entered she saw her brother lying on the floor, near the door and, supposing that he was asleep, she spoke to him, but there being no response looked more closely and saw blood on her brother's ghastly face. Mrs. Allen called Perling in, who made an investigation and found a horrible state of affairs.

In a bed in a room in which the husband and father lay was the mother with a bullet through her head. In a bed with her was a 2-year-old child also shot through the head.

On a lounge in the room lay a lad of ten years dead—shot through the head. In the room above was another bed occupied by two young girls, one thirteen and one fifteen, both dead, bullet holes in their heads. The dead were John Puterbaugh, his wife and four children.

How they met their terrible fate is as yet unknown. The general belief is that the terrible deed was the work of the husband and father. The motive is unknown as he was a peaceable man in comfortable circumstances and it is believed that no trouble existed in the family.

Coroner Wells of Beatrice arrived on the scene shortly after 6 o'clock and at a late hour to-night the inquest is in progress. It seems certain that a terrible crime was committed by Puterbaugh.

By his side under his arm lay a thirty-two calibre six-chamber revolver, with all the chambers empty. The scene in the house was a horrible one and made the strongest hearted turn away.

The faces of the dead, although covered with blood, were as calm as though sleeping. No signs of fear were portrayed on any of them and there was no evidence of a struggle. All seemed to have been killed while sleeping and were shot directly through the skull.

In every case the pistol was placed so close to their heads that the powder stains were visible on pillows or bed clothing.

Puterbaugh was not a drinking man and had a reputation of being an honest man and a good citizen. He suffered from the grip last spring and since then has not been in the best of health, subsequently complaining of a pain in his head.

He was a man about 38 or 40 years of age. His wife was a year or two younger.

The murdered children were aged as follows: Carrie 15, Mabel 13, Charlie 10, Ralph 2. One son survives, Allen, 17 years of age. The survivor was away from home at work, having left Wednesday last.

Puterbaugh was in Beatrice on Wednesday, and it is said he then purchased the revolver with which the deed was committed.

UNDER THE MOUNTAINS.

Mammoth Cave Discovered in California.

A Newspaper Exploring Party Furnishes a Topic for Scientific Discussion.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—The Examiner this morning announces the discovery of enormous caverns in Josephine county, Oregon, about twelve miles north of the California line and about forty miles from the coast.

The Examiner's exploring party discovered two openings in the cave which looked like small fissures in a great limestone bluff.

This limestone extends for miles and appears outside to be massive and solid, but inside it is honeycombed with crevasses and cracks which extend for miles without any apparent order or system. Many of the passages within the cave are described as of great beauty containing in them semi-transparent stalactites, giant milk white pillars, and pools and streams of pure clear water.

The party spent one week exploring the cave. Several miles from the entrance they discovered a small lake of clear water and a waterfall 30 feet high. A number of flash light photographs were taken.

The main body of the cave, it was estimated, was 1,500 feet from the surface of the mountain and the cavern itself appeared to be as large as the Mammoth cave in Kentucky.

Boiler Explosion.

LEBANON, Ky., July 11.—The boiler of a sawmill exploded on the Level woods, in Laurie county, yesterday evening, killing one man instantly, blowing him 100 yards, and mortally wounding another. The mill was a complete wreck and the explosion was heard for miles.

ALL CAMPBELL MEN.

Wood County Solid for the Governor.

A Rousing Democratic Convention Held in Bowling Green To-Day.

BOWLING GREEN, July 11.—(Special)—The democrats of Wood county selected eight Campbell delegates to-day.

They go uninstructed but are supposed to be straight.

The convention endorsed John W. Canary for attorney general and the platform of 1888.

IS MR. BLAINE DYING?

Conflicting Reports Wired from Bar Harbor.

Many of His Friends Fear His End is Near.

Others are Just as Positive That He Will Soon Recover and Return to Washington.

BAR HARBOR, July 11.—It is still an open question among those who think themselves in a position to know, whether J. G. Blaine will return to his duties at Washington in the fall, or whether he has gone to Bar Harbor to die.

There are intelligent people who argue by the hour that this distinguished American is going into his grave, dragged thither by a fatal combination of nervous prostration, paralysis and Brights disease of the kidneys.

There are others whose opinions would seem to carry equal weight, of precisely the contrary opinion, and who maintain with equal zeal that Mr. Blaine is suffering from nothing more serious than overtaxation of brain and nerves during the past winter.

In the face of such point blank contradiction it is hard to know just what to believe. The Herald's correspondent thinks that he is safe in making these two statements:

First—That Mr. Blaine is not by any means the man he was a year ago and that the habitues of Bar Harbor are shocked at the change.

Second—That if Mr. Blaine is really dying, from whatever cause, he is dying very gamely, and is making such a fight against the grim master as only a man of his iron will could.

A correspondent had a good look at the secretary of state yesterday.

He was in a brown study walking with slow stride up and down a favorite piazza which looks down on F renchman's bay.

He was dressed for comfort and nothing else.

What struck the correspondent was the expression of the face, paled white in a frame of silver.

His eyes shown as bright as of yore, but they shown with a feverish and unhealthy lustre, and there was in their look something of mental di[illegible].

Mrs. Blaine and [illegible]ghter, Mrs. Walter Damrosch, are almost worried to death about the condition of the one who is so dear to them.

"What is the trouble with Mr. Blaine, doctor?"

"His nerves, nothing but his nerves," answered Dr. N. Madison Taylor, the Philadelphia nerve specialist, who is in constant attendance.

"Then he has not Bright's disease, as reported?"

"Emphatically not; his kidneys are as sound as any man's."

"And he is not suffering from paralysis?"

"No, indeed. Do you think a man who had paralysis could drive about as he does?"

"But isn't his stomach all gone to pieces? They say he can take no nourishment except milk."

"Nonsense. Mr. Blain eats and enjoys three square meals a day, composed of pretty much the same dishes that you or I eat. He has a touch of dyspepsia now and then but no more than most Americans of his age."

"Then you think he will get well?"

"Unquestionably. During the few weeks he has been here he has made steady improvement and will go back to Washington all ready for the load of work before him."

Such is the physician's statement which some persons accept as gospel truth, while others shake their heads and refuse to be convinced.

"Mr. Blaine does absolutely nothing in the way of state business," said Mrs. Blaine, "all letters and papers of whatever importance are kept from him. Whenever it is necessary for him to write a letter he dictates to me, as only secretary."

"Do I think he is better? Oh, yes indeed, but of course we are very anxious."

That, by the way, is what strikes one as odd. If Mr. Blaine is in such capital shape as his doctor and family maintain, why all these speculations and why so much anxiety?

The statesman's daily life is as follows: He rises at 8:30 or 9, and after a hearty breakfast proceeds to read the newspapers.

The hour after breakfast is devoted to the news of the day and he never yet has been so ill that he could not go through, more or less thoroughly, the pile of papers which arrive daily.

At about 10:30 the old black horse, a Kentucky thoroughbred, is led to the door with an unpretentious phaeton, in which Mr. Blaine almost invariably prefers to take his morning drive. Mrs. Damrosch usually accompanies her father and does the driving, for the phaeton will hold only two persons, and Mrs. Blaine is too timid to handle the reins. Mr. Blaine himself does not drive because he is not strong enough to make such an effort.

Then comes dinner at 1:30, for which Mr. Blaine has an excellent appetite. That over, he lies down on the library lounge and watches his two little grandchildren—the little Coppingers—playing about the room, or he picks up his favorite series of great mens' lives and reads a chapter or two before falling into a dose. The afternoon nap over—it usually lasts an hour and a half—a hired conveyance is brought to the door and the second drive of the day is begun.

DEPARTMENT CHANGES.

Wanamaker's Division to Be Reorganized.

John Evidently Thinks Something Must be Done to Attract Attention Away from the Keystone.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(Special)—The postoffice department is about to have a cyclonic reorganization. In the first place the appointment division will be taken from the office of the first assistant postmaster-general and delivered over bodily to the fourth assistant, whose office was created by law, to take effect July 1.

The first assistant must be acting postmaster-general a great deal of the time, and in order to do this he must be freed from the drudgery and toil of examining fourth-class postoffice cases for appointment, changes of site, light and clerk hire, etc.

The chief clerk of the department will report to the first assistant upon all matters of department business, instead of, as heretofore, taking up the time of the postmaster-general with matters of petty detail.

Other changes will occur in the offices of second and third assistant postmaster general, which, taken as a whole, will make an almost entirely new department of that executive branch of the government.

STORY OF CHINESE MOBS

The Chinese Invited to Drive Out "Foreign Devils."

Visitors Cautioned to Look Out for Their Lives.

The Heads of Two Men Slowly Crushed to a Pulp by the Heathens Between Two Huge Stones.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—Advices from Shanghai of date of June 8 have arrived. The following is from one of the Shanghai papers of the above date:

The burning and plundering of the missionary establishments along the valley of the Yangste Kiang river still continues, and every day new details come in telling of the gradual increase in the number of the Chinese taking part in this wholesale destruction of missionary property and of their slow advance toward the city, as the head of the missions in this section of China.

The various consuls in Shanghai have notified their countrymen scattered throughout the smaller Chinese cities to come to this place for protection, or to go to the larger cities where sufficient foreigners reside, to enable a resistance to be made in case of a Chinese attack, until the arrival of vessels of war, upon which they can be taken on board for safety.

The missionaries are taking this advice, and already Shanghai contains many who have left their mission stations in charge of Chinese Christians, and have come to the city to remain until all trouble has subsided.

Telegrams from other cities inform of the arrival of such missionaries as could be reached by the consul's notification, while many residing at little outpost stations, away from mail communications, are yet to be heard from.

All the ladies and children at the unprotected stations have gone to the river cities, where they can be defended by the gunboats or brought here.

On the 8th inst., at Wusieh, a large city on the Grand Canal, about 100 miles from this city, a mob of more than 5,000 Chinese attacked the foreign quarter and mission establishment.

Placards calling upon all Chinese to unite and drive out the "foreign devils" from the sacred soil of China had been posted for several days previous. These notices were scattered throughout the city and vicinity, and hence gave some opportunity for the missionaries to prepare for flight.

About dusk the crowd began to gather, and shortly afterward a rush was made upon the French Catholic cathedral and orphan asylum. These were looted and burned, together with all the other buildings in that quarter.

Immediately after burning these churches a general onslaught was made upon the foreign property and everything burned, but not until all the churches as well as private dwellings have been plundered by the mob.

The inmates of the orphan asylum being Chinese were severely maltreated and then allowed to go.

The foreign ladies and children attached to the missions and otherwise, made their escape to the river bank, many in their night clothes and barefooted, where after spending a miserable night in fear and trembling, were taken on board by a passing steamer and taken further down the river, where calling in with the French man-of-war Inconstant they were transferred to her and now remain on board that vessel.

Two men, Mr. Green, collector of Chinese customs at Wusieh, and Mr. Argent, a missionary, who had only been in China three months, were captured by the mob, and after being severely maltreated, were put to death in a most horrible manner, their heads being slowly crushed between large stones.

The wife of Mr. Green, a Chinese lady, in attempting to defend her husband, was attacked by mob and killed, but not until after she had killed four of her assailants and wounded three others with a large Japanese sword which she carried.

The bodies of Mr. Argent and Mr. and Mrs. Green were recovered after some delay and buried in Kinkiang.

Upon learning of the riot at Wusieh, the U. S. S. Palos and two English gunboats proceeded at once to the city, but upon their appearance the mob dispersed, and nothing was left to mark their footsteps except the smouldering ruins of the mission buildings and foreign dwellings and stores.

The mission establishment at Wusieh was one of the most important in northern China, and was the headquarters of the district along the Grand canal extending towards Pekin.

It had been the principal station, and the success of these teachers had been very great, probably greater than in any other section in China.

The cathedral was the largest in the country, and the orphan asylum was the home of many friendless Chinese children, who were being brought up in the way of the gospel and intended as native teachers.

There are now seven men-of-war along the Yang-tse-Kiang river at the principal cities and mission stations, but these vessels cannot protect the whole of the river front, as the missions extend for more than 900 miles along its course.

The Chinese authorities do little or nothing towards suppressing the mobs, in fact, appear to be somewhat favorably inclined towards their course.

An attack is daily expected upon Shanghai, and active preparations are being made to frustrate it. It is confidently thought that no very strong effort will be made upon this city, however, until the mob becomes more thoroughly organized.

Still to preserve as much as possible from small uprisings, all the important neighboring missions have been garrisoned by small bodies of men and the lesser important ones abandoned by the missionaries until quiet is again restored.

The ministers of United States and European powers now at Pekin on the 7th held a joint meeting, at which the Chinese prime minister was informed that unless his government took effective and immediate steps to protect all foreigners and their property from the mobs, the foreign men-of-war would take matters into their own hands and deal vigorously in all cases where foreign interests were injured, by levying tributs upon seaport cities, and in case of refusal to pay and to punish the offenders, the public property of these cities would be destroyed, and the cities, perhaps, bombarded.

The number of people engaged in this rioting being rapidly increasing, and their actions and movements so systematic and controlled by leaders, it is now supposed that the affair will be or is fast becoming an insurrection, in which the chief aim is to overthrow the present Chinese dynasty, and estatlish one more suited to the people at large.

The present emperor is a Mongolian, and the desire of the mass of the people throughout the empire seems to be to overthrow him and to establish a thorough Chinese emperor upon the throne.

To accomplish this, they hope by killing foreigners and destroying their property that a war between China and the foreign powers can be brought on, and in the excitement and tension of affairs caused by such a state, that the present emperor can be deposed and another appointed in his stead.

Whatever may be the truth of this supposition the beginning is now at hand, namely, the murdering of foreigners and plundering and burning of their property.

Divorce Granted.

NEW YORK, July 11.—It has just leaked out that Edgar E. Saltus' wife has obtained her decree of absolute divorce. The decision was rendered on June 18. The only publicity given the affair was the serving of the notice by publication when the proceedings were begun in December, 1889.

The Diamond Thief Sentenced.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Wm. C. Duncan, the 17-year-old clerk who in January last stole diamonds valued at $30,000 from his employers, Lewisohn & Co., was to-day sentenced to four years and five months' imprisonment.

BETTER FIRE PR[illegible]TION.

Fostoria is Preparing to Handle Large Conflagrations.

FOSTORIA, July 11.—(Special)—Frank Galwally, who was arrested for assault and battery at the instance of Louis Ruch, will have a jury trial on Tuesday.

Another test of the outside fire protection of the Harter mills has been made. Water was thrown 200 feet. A new house has been built close to the mills, and furnished with 1,000 feet of hose. That part of the city is now well protected, and necessarily so, there being eight important plants in that immediate vicinity.

Regarding the awakened rumors concerning the removal of the Fostoria glass works from this city to Moundville, Va., Messrs. Martin and Brady will not commit themselves one way or the other. Their inability to deny the report, however, is evidence to the public that plans of removal are at least under consideration. But since furnaces, etc., are being overhauled for next fire, the removal, should it be decided upon, could not take place before January 1.

Drank Carbolic Acid.

TIFFIN, July 11.—To-day, at noon, a 3-year old daughter of Chas. Schown, of South Washington street, obtained possession of a bottle of carbolic acid and drank its contents. The child will die.

WAS HE ON?

How the Town of Wauseon Received Its Name.

Hon. H. H. Ham Has a Word to Say Politically — Fulton, He Says, Will Give the Usual Republican Majority.

WAUSEON, July 11.—(Special)—Politics are extremely quiet in Fulton county just now, which is attributed to the fact that the republicans have everything their own way. There is the usual howl among the farmers about the McKinley bill, and there seems to be a prevailing opinion that he will not have the vote Foraker had two years ago. This is not a mere conjecture, but based upon the remarks of men who have worn the party harness for years and who have never cast anything but a straight republican vote. The BEE correspondent, who happened to be on his way to Michigan, met Hon. H. H. Ham, and in response to a question that gentleman said: "While there is not very much work being done on either side, still it is quite evident that McKinley will carry the county. Of course he has over 1,000 votes in his favor, and as a natural consequence where the air is full of republican enthusiasm, a republican victory follows. While I am a republican I am decidedly in favor of giving the coming contest a most thorough test, and this can only be done in one way. Place Hon. Frank Hurd, of Toledo, as the standard bearer, and Ohio will have one of the greatest fights ever recorded in its history. Although he is a democrat I admire him for his brilliancy, and am of the opinion that no brighter man could be selected. With McKinley on one side and Hurd on the other it would be a fight to a finish, and one, too, which would go down in the history of Ohio for years to come."

"Relative to the Farmers' alliance I hardly think they are strong enough in this county to place a ticket in the field."

The Name of Wauseon.

The long prevailing mystery of how Wauseon was first named has at last been solved, and the BEE to-day takes pleasure in recording that fact. There is probably no man in Fulton county who has a wider reputation than L. M. Murphy, and it was from him the BEE learned how the town was christened. Back in the forties when the now thriving and flourishing Fulton county was almost a howling wilderness, there lived in this vicinity an aged couple whose fruit in this wicked world was a beautiful girl. The father and mother, as parents all do, looked forward to the day when their child would become a wife. As time rolled on and the old people advanced in age, the matter of finding a suitor for their daughter weighed heavily upon their minds, and at times they thought their life would end before the event would occur.

But a day finally came when one of Norwalk's promising young men came to their happy home and a match between the young people was made. The day for the affair was set; father and mother were happy, and their daughter looked forward with anxious pride to the day she would be made a bride. In order to reach the farmer's house it was necessary to drive from a neighboring station, and many long and weary rides were spent by the young man during his courtship. It was mutual love, and the old folks were satisfied.

The day came for the marriage to occur, and the farmer, with an extra brush of the hair, a polish of his boots and other repairs which usually go with a wedding, started for the station. The train steamed into the depot, and the old man peered forth in search of his prospective son-in-law. For some unaccountable reason the young man did not come, and nothing has ever been heard of him since. The farmer drove back to his home, where he met his daughter, who said, "Was he on?"

The grief-stricken maiden was so humiliated over the affair that she died of a broken heart, but before expiring she turned to her parents with the question, "Was he on?"

The three words were joined together, thus giving Wauseon its name.

POLITICS IN PAULDING.

Hon. John L. Geyer Making a Progressive Campaign.

He is Ably Assisted by M. N. Utley Col. Mott, Sheriff Saylar and Others.

PAULDING, O., July 11.—(Special)—If all the counties in Ohio were as ably and substantially organized as the county of Paulding, McKinley and his followers could not raise enthusiasm enough to buy a gin fizz. The farmers, who, by the way, compose the major part of the vote, have taken a deeper interest in the coming contest than ever before, and will roll up a good round majority for every democrat on the ticket.

Hon. John L. Geyer, candidate for state senator, is making a most progressive campaign, not only for himself but every man on the ticket. Mr. Geyer has an exceedingly strong following in his district and is making matters extremely blue for the little tin soldier.

Col. Mott, who received the nomination for prosecuting attorney, is found actively at work hustling for democracy and the denouncing of McKinley and his infamous bill. The colonel is a brilliant talker, full of logical points, and clearly demonstrates to the voters the great necessity of electing a democratic governor.

M. N. Utley, who is at the head of his ticket for representative, is daily at work driving through his district, bracing up fences which no living man will be able to batter this fall.

Sheriff Sayler, and in fact all of the democratic nominees, are doing all in their power for a victory, not because they fear defeat, but because they know that the issue is a vital one, and if McKinley is elected it means cold cash out of the pockets of every taxpayer in the state.

A fact remarked about the new Plaza hotel, New York, is that every appointment, every equipment is perfection. There has been no stint in furnishing. The finest, the best, even of the most costly, has been procured by a generous hand, a long purse, and a perfect judge of taste, in order to satisfy the wants of the wealthy, who can afford to live well and enjoy all the comforts of life unmarred by any blemish. The corps of assistants at the Plaza, including proprietor, superintendent, officials behind the counter, steward, chef, all rank at the top of their professions, and even competitors admit that the wide world cannot parallel a fellow to the Plaza.

[illegible]TORIES IN THE SOUTH.

He Reviews His Trip to Tennessee in 1864.

The Mission Was Diplomatic Rather Than Political.

The Subject Opened by Nicolay Promises to Be Productive of Volumes Before It is Through.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Gen. Daniel E. Sickles was shown the dispatch from Chicago, stating that he had been sent by President Lincoln upon a mission to Tennessee. The General said he did not feel at liberty to tell all the story of his visit to Tennessee, which he made just prior to the Baltimore convention.

"I cannot go into these matters," he said, "because my relations with President Lincoln were of a confidential nature, and even now I do not feel that I may speak of them. It is true that I was in Tennessee for several weeks in the spring prior to the Baltimore convention. I went there on a special mission from President Lincoln, but this mission was not of the nature suggested by the gentleman in Chicago—to ascertain the sentiment or to secure information which might affect Mr. Johnson's standing before the convention. My mission was not a political one. It was more of a diplomatic mission.

"Mr. Johnson was then military governor of Tennessee, and in his administration was very severe. His administration was of a character which seemed to Mr. Lincoln too harsh and not calculated to meet the policy which he believed the proper one. I had known Gov. Johnson in congress, and we were on the most pleasant relations socially. I was given such credentials that I was placed on the best of terms with him officially. I spent four weeks in Tennessee, and during that time was with him very much.

"Without going into details, I will say that my object was to see if the general character of his administration, as a governor, could not be modified to come more closely to Mr. Lincoln's idea. I did the work that I was sent to do to the best of my ability and reported direct to President Lincoln immediately on my return to Washington telling him the situation as I had found it. In all this I heard nothing of any bearing which this might have on the possible selection of a candidate for the presidency."

"Do you think that the results of your mission may have influenced the president in his feeling toward Mr. Johnson or had any effect on the nominating convention?" Gen. Sickles was asked.

"I cannot say that they may not have had some effect," he replied, "but, if they did, it was an indirect one, and one which was not thought of, so far as I know, when I was sent south by the president."

"I never heard the president express himself on that question," Gen. Sickles said. "At the time I undertook the mission to Tennessee, the president had not even avowed that he would be a candidate himself. He shrank from such an avowal, and on high grounds. He used to tell me that he hesitated to say that he would be a candidate. He once said: 'Sickles, I must not do it.' To avow one's self a candidate for the presidency—to step forward and avow one's self ready to assume the heavy burdens which come to the president for four years—is something that no man should do. And the people might rightly look with disfavor and suspicion upon one who openly declared that he was ready for the next four years to assume these burdens.'

"With such feelings on the subject of his own candidacy, Mr. Lincoln, I should say, would be still more disinclined to announce his preferences for the second place on the ticket."

Gen. Sickles said that he advised Mr. Lincoln emphatically that he must be a candidate. He told him that the announcement of his nomination would have greater and better effect on the union cause than the announcement of three victorious battles. It would mean four years more of men and money and fighting, if necessary, to end the war."

"I told him that his nomination was necessary as a war measure," said Gen. Sickles. "I further told him that he was not doing right in allowing Mr. Chase, his principal rival, to make the appointments of special treasury agents, as he was then doing. I told him that each appointment was good for one delegate to the convention and that Chase would get the benefit of the distribution of the plums. He replied with a funny story.

"I went south on my mission, and after several weeks returned to Washington and went at once to the White House, as I have already said. It was evening and a reception was in progress. I made a brief stop, and was just coming away when the president beckoned me to come inside the lines where the diplomatic corps was standing. I did so, and after the crowd had began to thin out, the president drew a telegram from the pocket of his dress coat and handed it to me. It was from Columbus, Ohio, telling him that the state convention had that day elected delegates to Baltimore 'solid for Lincoln.' I said to him: 'Mr. President, you know more about those treasury appointments than I did. When Ohio goes for you against Chase I have nothing more to say. You are the better politician.'

Gen. Sickles said that he did not know who the Chicago man was who had mentioned his visit to Tennessee could be, "for," said he, 'I do not think I ever spoke of my visit except to the president."

New Corporations.

COLUMBUS, O., July 11.—The following articles of incorporation were filed in the office of the secretary of state to-day: The South Zanesville Stock Sales company, South Zanesville, capital stock, $5,000; the Morrison & Snodgrass company, Cincinnati, capital stock, $100,000; the Gibson Chair company, Kenton, increase of capital stock from $25,000 to $50,000.

Sold for Over a Million.

JOHNSTOWN, July 11.—The sale of all the buildings, ground, stock, and fixtures of the Cambria iron company's stores here and in Blair county was practically effected yesterday. A number of Philadelphia capitalists figured in the transaction. The property included in the sale is valued at about $1,200,000.

Killed by An Umbrella Stab.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Wm. Hobbs, a waiter in a Third avenue restaurant, died yesterday morning in Bellevue hospital from the effects of a thrust in the eye with an umbrella inflicted upon him by an unknown assailant Wednesday night.

JUST AS EXPECTED.

A Marriage That Proved to Be a Failure.

Banker Brown Secured a Divorce from His Fair But Frail Laura Hobson.

BALTIMORE, July 11.—The divorce proceedings which have been pending at Towson for nearly two years between Alexander D. Brown and his wife, Laura Hobson Brown, were finally concluded yesterday by the signing of a decree by agreement by Judge Fowler divorcing the parties and awarding Mrs. Brown annual alimony to the amount of $4,000.

When Brown married Laura Hobson about 15 years ago he was a member of a prominent banking firm.

Laura Hobson was a woman who had grown rich as the proprietoress of a questionable resort.

Brown was retired by the firm and tabooed by society. He took his wife to a magnificent estate in the country, but uncongeniality led to the filing of cross bills, in which mutual recriminations were made.

IT GROWS MORE SERIOUS.

The Lake City Bank Failure a Bad One.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 11.—The lake city bank failure is more serious than was supposed, and the general impression is that it is a complete wreck.

There are many more depositors than was supposed. The best business men are badly hurt. There is still no definite statement of liabilities.

Turned on the Gas.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 11.—Mrs. Mary H. Nutter, a colored woman employed as a domestic at the Warwick cottage, on South Mississippi avenue, was found dead in her room this morning. The gas was turned on and the windows and doors shut. Death resulted from asphyxiation. It is supposed to be purely accidental, as the woman came a few days ago from a small village named Nanticoke, Maryland, where gas is unknown.

Population of England and Wales.

LONDON, July 11.—The result of the recent census of England and Wales has been announced. The total population is given as 29,-001,018, an increase of 3,026,572, or 11.66 per cent over the previous census.

Destroyed by Fire.

DARIEN, Conn., July 11.—An incendiary fire early this morning destroyed the feed store of Mather & Grumman, Matthew Lambert's roadhouse and George Bailey's livery stable. The loss will aggregate $25,000. The place has no fire department.

HURON COUNTY DEMOCRATS.

They are Holding a Convention To-day.

Stewart Secures the Senatorial Delegates—The Hinckley Case—Miscellaneous Mention.

NORWALK, O., July 11.—(Special)—The democratic county convent for the election of delegates to the state, senatorial and judicial convention, will meet at the court house at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

The caucuses in the different wards resulted a complete victory for H. L. Stewart, who captured every delegation. Senator Brady, the only other candidate in the field, was placed on one delegation, but is alone. It now looks as though the county convention would be solid for Stewart, who always holds the county delegations. The Stewart men are jubilant.

The Hinckley Case.

Coroner Reynold rendered his verdict in the Hinckley case at New London with Clerk Rood yesterday afternoon. In it he says:

"After having heard the evidence and examined the body I do find that the deceased came to her death by heart failure as the immediate cause of her death. I also find that she was confined to her bed for some two weeks before death, and a few hours before she took took her bed she received injuries at the hands of one Lucerne Hinkley, her husband. But from the evidence I am unable to conclude that such injuries contributed to her death."

The Fifth Regiment.

Lieut. Col. C. L. Kennan, of the Fifth regiment has just returned from Cleveland where he has been in consultation with Adjutant Sam Williams concerning the coming encampment of the Fifth at Sage's grove, Henson, on the 22d inst. Col. Gibbons, who, since his injuries received in the railroad accident a few weeks ago, has been suffering with pluerosey and pneumonia, it is believed now will probably not be able to go into camp. In that case Col. Kennan will be in command. His long connection with the National guard and his strong personal popularity in the regiment will do much to soften the disappointment which the absence of Col. Gibbons will occasion.

Common Pleas Court.

Judge Mills closed the common pleas court to-day until August 10. This was, it is said, the only common pleas court in session in the state and both the judge and the bar will be glad of the coming vacation.

Opium Smugglers.

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., July 11.—During the last 15 days five opium smugglers have been captured by boat crews from the United States revenue cutter Wolcott. The men were all caught in the vicinity of Roche harbor San Juan island. The activity of the Wolcott is practically breaking up all smuggling on the straits.

THE GROWING GRAIN.

The Wheat Condition is Very Flattering.

Prospects All Point to an Excellent Crop Both in Quality and Quantity.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—The July report of the department of agriculture makes the acreage as compared with the breadth harvested last year of corn 108.3; potatoes, 102.3; tobacco, 102.6; condition—corn, 92.8; winter wheat, 96.2; spring wheat, 94.1; rye, 98.9; oats, 87.6; barley, 90.9; potatoes, 95.3; tobacco, 91.1.

The heavy increase in corn acreage is more apparent than real. The comparison is with the breadth harvested last year, when there was a loss of 6,000,000 acres by abandonment on account of drought. The present return makes the acreage slightly less than 78,000,000 acres, or somewhat smaller than the area actually planted last year. Kansas and Nebraska naturally show a large increase, but their area apparently does not exceed that harvested in 1889. A further and more minute investigation will be made in the districts which suffered most from drought last year.

The crop is late in all sections on account of drought and unfavorable conditions at the time of planting and cool weather during May, but June was warm, with abundant moisture, and the crop was coming forward rapidly on July 1. In the Ohio and upper Mississippi valleys the progress during the month was especially gratifying, but in Kansas and Nebraska a considerable damage resulted from excessive rainfall. In many districts the June rains prevented proper working, leaving fields foul, but a few days of sunshine would remedy this. The general average is a fraction below that of 1888 and 1890, and slightly above that of 1889. The average of surplus states are: Ohio 93, Indiana 95, Illinois 96, Iowa 94, Missouri 88, Kansas 82, Nebraska 90.

The condition of winter wheat is returned practically the same as in June. The crop is harvested, except in its more northern habitat, with a condition the highest reported since 1879 with one exception.

So far as can be judged at the time of harvest the berry is reported generally plump and in keeping with the heavy straw, but occasional mention is made of short heads. Averages of principal states are: Pennsylvania 93, Ohio 97, Michigan 82, Indiana 99, Illinois 98, Missouri 98, Kansas 94, California 98.

The condition of spring wheat improved during June, the advance being in Minnesota and the Dakotas, where the month was exceptionally favorable. Chinch bugs have appeared in portions of the northwest, but with no appreciable damage yet. Wisconsin 77, Minnesota 93, Iowa 93, Nebraska 96, North Dakota 98, South Dakota 97, Washington 98.

Oats have improved during the month, but the official average is the lowest reported since 1879, except in 1887 and last year, when a July condition of 81.6 was followed by a practical failure of the crop. The poor condition is generally the result of drouth early in the season, the present improvement having followed the seasonable rains and high temperature of June.

The first return of potatoes shows condition higher than the average of recent years, while that of tobacco is higher than in any year since 1886.

The fruit prospect is very flattering in New England and the North Atlantic states and west of the Missouri river to the Pacific coast. The crop in Ohio and Michigan was materially damaged by the frosts of May.

A special cable from the European agent indicates a heavy deficiency in the European rye crop.

MOVEMENTS AT MORENCI

Great Interest Taken in the Proposed Railroad.

Some of the Prime Movers Express Themselves.

The Bee Correspondent Talks to the Business Men, Who are Just as Enthusiastic as They Ever Were.

MORENCI, Mich., July 11.—(Special.)—The meeting which was held Thursday evening has had its effects, and it is now more than probable that all of those who came to the front when the new road was first adopted will do the same again. There seems to be a prevailing sentiment to commence action at once, and in view of this fact C. C. Wakefield, W. W. Crabbs H. D. Pegg, Hon. Albert Deyo, C. Allen, and many other prominent and influential citizens have been diligently at work on the matter.

There is one thing that is quite evident, and one which is noticeable at a glance, and that is the citizens of this place do not allow flies to linger around them very long.

They are progressive, thoroughly understand their business, and never tackle anything unless they come out victorious.

Expressions from all men, women and children are to the effect that the road is needed, and that the same amount of money raised a year ago can be secured again. This is more than possible, as those seen by the BEE are just as much in favor of giving now as they ever were, and if it comes to a pinch will do still more. With the gentlemen mentioned above, there is no doubt but that it will go through sailing.

WHAT THEY THINK.

A Bee Pays a Personal Visit to the Business Men of This Place.

C. S. Saulsbury: I am in favor of having the road built at once, and will do all in my power toward assisting the project. It will increase the population of the town and give business and manufacturers first class shipping facilities.

G. M. Keyes: Yes, sir, I should like to see the road in operation right in this town, and not three or four miles from here. This is a good point with plenty of natural facilities, and can be made still better with a railroad. The surrounding country is well developed and with a few more manufactories the population would greatly increase.

W. D. Webster: "There is no doubt but that it would be a great benefit both to the dealer and consumer. Better railroad rates could be secured and, as a natural consequence, goods would be received to a better advantage. I should like to see the road built for the good of all concerned."

Frank Kellogg: "It will greatly improve shipping facilities, something which has long been needed here. The freight on western grain would be reduced to such an extent that the milling trade would be largely increased and better inducements could be offered."

L. D. Morey: I am in favor of the road, if it comes to Morenci.

A. Poucher: I have been and am still in favor of the line. It will benefit the farmers, manufacturers, and in fact everybody's property will enhance in value and the entire town and community will be improved.

Daniel Staniger: The amount I gave one year ago is ready for the company any time they wish it. I want to see the road built and think every citizen should take an active interest in the enterprise.

James Clark: When it was first agitated one year ago I did not feel very friendly toward the project. Since that time, however, I have given the matter considerable attention, and now see the great necessity of constructing the road. We need it badly, and I am willing to give the same amount I gave when the affair was organized. It will help us wonderfully, and have a tendency to bring more industries here which never will come with our present railroad facilities.

H. D. Pegg, of Pegg & Wilson: "I am always in favor of public improvements and decidedly sanction the building of the new railroad. There is no point in Michigan or Ohio that is more deserving of having this road than Morenci, and I see of no reason why it cannot be secured. Those whom I have seen in relation to the matter stand the same now as they did one year ago. We want the road and want it without further parley.

R. Wilson, of Pegg & Wilson: I should only be too happy to pay the amount I subscribed one year ago if the road will be built. At that time I was quite enthusiastic and felt somewhat disappointed at the sudden turn in the affair. However, as I have said before, the road is needed here, and I am ready to do all in my power toward securing it. We have always been in a pocket, so to speak, and have never been able to pay the price for grain as other towns do. With an outlet east and west this obstacle would be overcome and we could then command the farm products.

E. E. Green, one of the oldest hardware merchants and most substantial business men in Morenci was seen by the BEE correspondent, and in reply to a question said: "I took great interest in the road when it was first spoken and feel the same to-day. It was a great disappointment, after we had done considerable hustling to drop the matter, but with all that I am for the good of the town and give the same amount I gave one year ago, with all things equal. The road should be built at once, and you can rest assured it will be a paying adventure.

Dr. Butler: Owing to the lack of railroad facilities there has always been a drawback for the industries here. With a direct line the large amount of farming products from the immediate vicinity would be brought here for shipment to other markets, and as a matter of course all would be benefited thereby.

C. C. Wakefield: There is certainly a demand for the road. I am quite confident now that it will come around all right. The amount raised last year was $11,475 50, and I am of the opinion that this will all be renewed without any trouble.

S. A. Scofield, one of the old stand-bys, who came gallantly to the front one year ago, is just as enthusiastic now as he ever was. When told that an effort was being made to renew the notes given some months since, Mr. Scofield, without any hesitation whatever, gave the amount he originally subscribed. To a BEE correspondent he said: "We are ready for the road, if they are ready for us. The amount, I believe, can be easily raised and the citizens and farmers should give their hearty support and push this matter to completion."

A. T. Smith: "Of course a road like the one proposed would be of great value to the town. It would increase trade of every description and would greatly help the farmers."

L. M. Smith: "I have every reason in the world to believe that Morenci would be more benefited than any other town along the line. The present system of railroads is a miserable one and instead of helping us it has been detrimental."

Prominent among others who expressed themselves were S. Humphrey, C. S. Ingals, D. M. Blair, S. S. Beatty, Benjamin & Co., Campbell Bros. & Co., E. B. Rorick. All of these gentlemen are deeply interested in the advancement of their town and sincerely favor the adoption and rapid completion of the line. They are willing to do as they have done in the past and think an active campaign of work should be commenced without any further delay.

Peculiar

Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the curative value of the best known remedies of the kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "One Hundred Doses One Dollar." The Enormous Amount of Life Which Has Gone Out of the American People—Can It Ever be Recovered?

Have you noticed that there are more broken-down men and weak women on your streets to-day that ever before? Have you not noticed that certain of your friends, whom you have always known to be strong and healthy, are for some reason, weak and low-spirited? Is it not possible that you yourself feel a trifle less vigorous than in the past? Is it a fact that the American people are growing weaker, or is it due to some local cause? There can be little doubt that it is owing almost entirely to the fearful after effects of the grip. This terrible and mysterious complaint, starting unaccountably and running severely, invariably leaves the person in a weak, nervous and run down condition, from which it requires much time to recover.

When people are in such a state, when nature is weak and broken, what would common-sense dictate should be done? Precisely what physicians say should be done, viz: Assist Nature, stimulate her lagging faculties, build her up. How? By using a pure medicinal stimulant, and for this purpose there is nothing equal to pure whiskey. Doctors, scientific men, and the leading thinkers of the land have declared this and have unhesitatingly agreed that there is no whiskey so pure and efficient as Duffy's Pure Malt. It stimulates healthily and builds up wasted tissues. It renews the nervous organization and assists to health. It is popular because it is so efficient. Great care should be taken, however, to secure only the genuine. Distrust any dealer who for any reason seeks to induce you to buy something "just as good." By the judicious use of this pure stimulant the after effects of the grip may be removed and health and strength put in place of weakness and debility.

Passenger Agent Gunckel Sings a Song a Sixpence.

The Ann Arbor Refuses to Pay Trainmen.

What Those Employes Think They Should Receive—The Grand Officers Will Try to Settle the Matter.

In the graphic language of the times there are no flies on Passenger Agent John E. Gunckel, of the Lake Shore. If there ever were any they were brushed off long, long ago. The latest evidence of Mr. Gunckel's condition in this respect is embodied in the following yarn. Recently when the spring term came to a close, and the students at Oberlin were ready to depart for their homes he traveling passenger agents of the various lines departed for the locality to paint in chromo-litho terms the famous scenery, luxurious coaches, direct route and general superiority of their respective lines, and to labor with the students for their patronage.

There were Gunckel, Patterson, of the Bee line, Sherman, of the Union Pacific, and many others. They all struck the town about the same time and started out with various tactics securing business. They stuck together, watching each other suspiciously, looking out all the time for an opportunity to get in a good stroke ahead of the gang.

Gunckel reached the town with the party, but after that moment no one set eyes on him. The others wondered where he had gone, and for a day or so were somewhat worried as to his whereabouts. Finally they made up their minds that he had gone fishing, and so they settled back and said to each other, "Gunckel ain't in it."

It was only during certain hours that the passenger men could reach the ears of the students, and after several days when they did so they were generally greeted with:

"Tickets? Oh yes; got our tickets, don't cher know; made arrangements with Gunckel."

This little story, oft-repeated, became as a tale of woe to the passenger men. They marveled greatly at John's doings, waxed exceedingly wroth, spat on their hands, and sailed in once again, only to be rebuffed with "Got my ticket, sir; Gunckel, you know."

Gunckel had never showed up once, and the mystery deepened. The clouds were finally dispelled on the occasion of the commencement exercises. The railroad men were present in their best clothes decked with nosegays. When the students filled on to sing the grand chorus, lo and behold there was Gunckel in line singing at the top of his lungs, his bald pate bobbing about among the youngsters.

He had been rehearsing with them for the past week, and had sold 1,400 tickets out of the 1,600 disposed of. A brick house fell on the passenger men, while Gunckel rolled his eyes heavenward as the sweet, tender notes of his childish voice soared to the skies and mingled with the roseate sunset in the pearly west.

The Ann Arbor Trouble.

A committee of 11, representing the engineers, firemen, conductors and brakemen on the Toledo, Ann Arbor & North Michigan railroad called on General Manager Ashley last evening and asked for an increase of wages. The men do not fancy the manner in which the company is treating them in the matter.

It seems that July 3 a schedule of wages was posted, which, it read, took effect June 14. This was the first the men knew of the cut, so they say. The conductors' runs were lengthened from 150 to 164 miles. The wages of the freight brakesmen and firemen were not cut, but their pay for overtime was stopped. There were also reductions made in the wages of the passenger baggagemen, brakesmen and conductors.

The men say that their present wages are lower than those of employes holding similar positions on any road in the United States.

Said one of the committee this morning: "What we want is to be treated fairly. The Ann Arbor pays the poorest salaries in the country, for which state of affairs there is no good reason that we know of. We know that the earnings are on the increase and do not warrant a cut. We have asked for a raise of 15½ per cent. over the old schedule of wages that is in effect before the cut. The company will not give us a satisfactory answer. We offered to acquiesce in the decision of a board of arbitration, but Mr. Ashley said no—there was nothing to arbitrate."

The men are members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, the Order of Railway Conductors, the Brotherhood of Railroad Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and the grand officers of these organizations will be in Toledo Monday to see what can be done in the way of a settlement.

At the general office of the road this morning it was stated that at present they could not increase the wages of the men as the earnings would not warrant it.

These differences of opinion are liable to result in some lively times.

The Jury in the Donivan Case Returns a Verdict of Guilty as Charged.

FINDLAY, O., July 11.—(Special.)—Housebreakers were at work on West Sandusky street last night.

The residences of County Clerk Julian and Samuel Owens were completely ransacked but little of value was taken at Julian's, but at the latter place a gold watch, fifteen dollars in cash, a fine K of P. charm, and several smaller articles of jewelry are missing.

No clue to the identity of the guilty parties.

The jury in the Donivan murder trial returned a verdict of guilty as charged in the indictment. They came in at about 9 o'clock last night.

The result of this trial is a great surprise to all, and especially to the prisoner and his friends. Every effort was made to clear him.

His wife created a scene in the court room when the verdict was read by crying piteously and throwing herself wildly in his arms. She had to be taken from the court room. A motion has been made for a new trial; it will be argued on Monday

THE GLASS BLOWERS.

The National Trade Assembly to Meet in St. Louis.

PITTSBURG, July 11.—National Trade assembly No. 143, K. of L., comprising the glass bottle blowers of the United States and Canada, will meet on the 13th inst. at St. Louis. It is said that demands for certain changes in the existing state of affairs will be made that will create a revolution in the trade.

The American Manufacturers says there is a disposition to shorten hours and do away with the old rule making but a half a day Saturday. The tank furnaces are to shut down at 5 p. m. on Saturday instead of midnight as at present. California will submit a proposition to limit all glassblowers to $36 per week. The admission of other foreign glass blowers into the organization will be another subject to be discussed.

The bottle workers and window men are at variance on this matter. The latter encourage foreigners to join their unions. The western bottle men propose to advance the item on wine bottles schedule from $1.58 to $1.70 per gross.

The bottle workers will endeavor to sever their connection with the K. of L. and join the American Federation of Labor combination with the flint glass workers. The wage committee has been invested with full power by the Western Flint Manufacturers' association to act in the conference with the wage committee of the flint glass workers.

A REVIEW OF TRADE.

What Dun Reads in the Signs of the Times.

The Entire Absence of Speculative Excitement is Having a Good Influence.

NEW YORK, July 11.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: The unusual conservatism which prevails in nearly all sections and branches of business impresses many as a most disheartening symptom.

But it may with at least equal reason be interpreted as the very best ground for confidence in a healthy and solid improvement when new and large crops come forward more freely.

The absence of speculative excitement the indisposition to buy in haste, are having a most wholesome influence. Prices of materials and products are thus kept in such a relation that large and fairly profitable business is possible, but will be based, when it comes, upon the actual demands of consumers, and not upon inflated hopes.

This conservative attitude is the more necessary this year because, while money is now abundant here and cheap on call, the possibility of disturbance abroad, or of difficulty in obtaining needed supplies for moving crops at the west, is not yet entirely removed.

Crop reports have never been more full than they are this year, and they grow more clearly satisfactory as to spring wheat every day, improving also as to other grain and cotton. Wheat has declined 2c. during the last week, notwithstanding exports fully as large as a year ago, but immediate demand for corn has caused a rise of 1¾ c. and oats are quoted higher.

Sales were but moderate. Pork products are a shade lower, coffee unchanged, and oil about a cent lower, with very little activity in dealings. The market for sugar has been weaker, but grows steady, and refined in better demand. The general course of prices have changed but little during the past week.

Tin has declined a shade through speculation at London and like copper sells at 12¾c, the half year's production by six companies being 28,048 tons, against 26,750 tons last year. Lead is weaker at 4.45c., with some realizing.

Reports from other cities show a waiting trade and in the east, greater confidence throughout the west and a general dullness at the south. Boston reports a little more activity. Manufactured iron at Pittsburg is in better demand and the coal output in June was the largest ever known.

Trade is fairly good for the season at Cleveland, and also at Cincinnati, where new buildings for the first half of the year exceed by $500,000 the record last year. Wool is moving better at Detroit and iron is in fair demand.

At Chicago wheat receipts are three times last year's and there is increase in flour and corn, and trade in dry goods, clothing and shoes exceeds last year's, with good collections.

Receipts of other grain, cured meats, dressed beef and lard fall behind last year and crop reports are very favorable, all indications pointing to a large trade in the future.

At St. Louis the trade in wool, grain, produce and live stock is good, but lumber and the building trades are dull; the outlook for fall trade is encouraging.

Milwaukee reports some sensation caused by failure of the largest grain commission house. At Minneapolis trade is good for the season, the flour output being 140,000 barrels.

At St. Paul, Omaha, and Kansas City crop prospects improve trade, and at Denver business is fair. Some increase is noted at Louisville, but at other southern points dullness prevails, and at New Orleans, although slight improvement is seen, the tactics of traders are extremely conservative.

The mid-summer closing of iron works almost suspend the trade, but while the best brands of pig are well taken, others are hard to sell, and Alabama No. 1 has been offered here at $16. No activity is noted in rails, and not much in manufactured iron, and it is thought that early resumption by the works will cause decline in prices.

The anthracite coal trade is dull, the average price for June at Schuylkill mines being $2.23 per ton against $2.24 last year. Wool moves slowly at New York, buyers taking only for actual needs.

In woolen goods some improvements in orders is observed, and a greater feeling of security for the future. The trade in flannels is strong and healthy, and in knit goods very satisfactory.

Agricultural goods are in extraordinary demand and the makers are buying iron largely.

India rubber has rapidly declined, consumers refusing to buy from the syndicate which is carrying an immense stock, and it is thought the new supplies coming in October will prove too heavy for it. The building trade is, on the whole, less active than a year ago, though at Chicago an increase of 7 per cent is noted.

At Chicago and other northern points generally the supply of money is ample, though at the West there is more demand than heretofore. At southern points the markets are close as a rule, although only firm and in fair supply at New Orleans.

The business failures occuring throughout the country during the last seven days number 247 as compared with a total of 237 last week. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 197.

SOME SPICY CURRENT TOPICS

Of Local and Neighborhood Interest.

Notes and Comments on Incidents Occurring Daily—Prepared for Readers Who Are Hustled for Time.

First Trip to the Union Depot.

The Robisons run their first cars to the Union depot to-day via Summit and Broadway. Huron street and Forest cemetery cars run to this point, and the asylum cars run from Adams street to the asylum.

A Youth in Trouble.

A 10-year-old boy named George Stinzel was committed to the county jail this morning by Justice Allen for stealing a rifle from Rev. H. S. Brackney, living in West Toledo. The hearing will occur Monday morning.

Salesmen's Outing.

The Toledo salesmen have arranged a day's outing for next Sunday, July 19, to Sandusky and Cedar Point, via the L. S. & M. S. railroad. A grand picnic, fine music and other amusements will be the order of the day. A big time is anticipated.

Prizes Awarded.

Ford Post last evening counted the votes in the contest for a lady's gold watch, which was made on the evening of July 4. The prize was awarded Miss Speis. The gentleman's watch will be awarded this evening. The contestants are W. H. Tucker and Judge Sala.

The Statement Denied.

Manager Lang, of the Consolidated, informs the BEE that the statement that the hours of the men on the road had been increased, was false.

It may be said in this connection that the information in the first instance was given the BEE by one of its employes.

Off for England.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Vanstone and daughters left last night for Philadelphia, accompanied by Mr. Fred Vanstone, with whom they will visit the Quaker city for a few days, and sail next Wednesday for England where they will remain several weeks. Miss Anna will take up her musical studies on the other side.

Suit on Alleged Breach of Contract.

A suit was instituted in common pleas court to-day by Lyman W. Wachenheimer, receiver of the Enterprise machine company against Charles McDonough and John McCaffery, under the firm name of the Standard Flower Pot and Terre Cotta company, to recover $25 for machinery manufactured on a contract. The plaintiff alleges that the machines were manufactured according to specification, but were never accepted by the defendants.

The Lulu-Lala Launched.

For the past six months Dan Segur of the water works department has been putting in his spare time building a boat. Last evening he witnessed the fruit of his labors rolled into the classic Maumee at a 2:40 gait, in the presence of an admiring crowd of friends. The boat was named in honor of George A. Haigh of New York, who sent a reminder of the occasion, which was not wasted in the breaking on the bow by any means. The Lulu-Lala is a daisy.

The Cadets in Camp.

The Toledo Cadets went into camp today on the Slatter farm, near Waterville. The boys have selected a picturesque spot and will no doubt have an enjoyable time. They will be in camp for eight days. A band and orchestra will furnish sweet music, and the boys are prepared to entertain all visitors.

Capt. George S. Wilson of the Twelfth Ohio regiment, of the Columbus barracks, arrived in the city this morning and will camp with the boys.

Adjt.-Gen. Thomas T. Dill is expected to-morrow or Monday.

Monday's Improvement to Be Bid For.

At noon on Monday City Engineer Wilkenden and City Clerk Durian will receive bids for the following public improvements:

Eagle lane, from Lagrange street to Elm street, paving; Magnolia street, from Michigan street to Cuamplain street, paving; Franklin avenue, from Bancroft street to Cuerry street, pipe connecting; Bancroft street, from Ashland avenue to Monroe street, pipe connecting; sewer No. 375, Wisconsin street, and alleys from Junction avenue to Hoag street.

I. O. G. T. Notes.

Beacon Light lodge will remove from their present place of meeting in a few days.

The next meeting of the Fifth district will be held here in Toledo July 30 and 31, and the lodges are arranging to entertain the delegates.

West Toledo is alive and will stir up that part of our city Monday evening, July 13, with a free entertainment, consisting of singing, music, recitations, and speaking by several good speakers. Everybody is invited.

Harry B. White, grand chief templar of Ohio, will leave for Circleville Monday evening, where he is billed to speak next week.

Canoeists off for Ballast Island.

The Toledo Canoe club held its regular meeting last night and discussed numerous matters of interest to the club. It was decided to give an evening excursion to Presque Isle in the near future, and Robert Dawson and Walter Woodruff were appointed a committee on arrangements. Andrew Gray was elected to membership, and a special meeting of the club will be held July 24.

This morning the following members of the club, with their canoes, will leave for Ballast Island to attend the meeting of the Western Canoe association: Joseph Hepburn, canoe Nixie; Robert Dawson, Dux; Charles Armstrong, Mira; John Roeser, Clipper.

Sour Grapes.

If an apology is needed for calling attention so voluminously to the performances of Toledo's new steamer the necessity for it may be mitigated by referring back to the files of the Toledo press in general as to what that boat was going to do toward taking away the business of other boats running from this city to the islands and Detroit and concentrating it at Toledo as the most available shipping port for about all of it.—Sandusky Journal.

It is evident from the many disparaging remarks the Journal has made lately relative to the City of Toledo, that the writer thereof has been partaking of island grapes, which are green at this time of the year and consequently very sour.

Sanfiet Wants the Robisons Locked Up.

In the common pleas court last evening John V. Sanfiet filed proceedings against the city of Toledo and the Toledo Electric Street Railway company for an alleged violation of a restraining order of the court.

The plaintiff claims that the restraining order was entered July 5, 1890, and that on July 7 the defendant violated the same by running the cars over the streets in which the Consolidated property had been appropriated.

The plaintiff asks that David Robison, jr., and James J. Robison be required to appear in court and show cause why they should not be punished for contempt of court, and be required to give further security to hereafter obey the order of the court and be committed into custody until the same shall be fully complied with.

Want to Go to the Soldiers' Home.

The case against William Sales for beating his wife last week came up in police court this morning and tangled both the prosecutor and the judge. The arrest was made on the complaint of a neighbor, and when the witnesses were examined it was only by the hardest work that the facts of the case were brought out.

The trouble was caused between some correspondence on the part of the wife, and drink on the part of the husband, and both had more or less abused the other.

Mr. Sales asked for the mercy of the court, and if allowed it he would go and get his discharge papers, as he is an old soldier, and leave town at once for the Soldiers' home, and leave everything to his wife and never bother her again.

Judge Sala could not decide the case today and it was continued until Monday.

A Pleasant Occasion.

The excursion given for the benefit of the Presbyterian church at Ottawa, of which Rev. Lowe is pastor, not only resulted in a nice little addition to the church funds, but was an occasion of great enjoyment to all the participants. The excursion was under the supervision of the sewing society of the church, and Mrs. Gen. Rice, president of the society, spared no efforts to make the affair the success it was. A special on the C., H. & D. brought the Ottawa people to the city, where they were joined by a number of their Toledo friends, among whom were: Mrs. Judge Austin and family, Dr. C. E. Tupper, of the asylum, and family, including his daughter, Mrs. W. H. Kinder, of Columbus; Mrs. O. J. Hopkins, and her guests, Miss Allison, of West Virginia, and Miss Stover, of Xenia; Mrs. Judge Seney and family; Mrs. P. H. Dowling; Misses Grace Childs, Marie Waite, Sara Beatty, Grace Hines. Among other visitors were Mrs. John G. Thompson, of Columbus, and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Clarke, from the Orphans' home, at Xenia, of which institution Mr. Clarke is financial officer. The Pastime carried the excursionists to Presque Isle, and after the band concert in the afternoon they were taken on the same boat for a long ride on the bay, the band discoursing delightful music all the way. The Ottawa people went home delighted with the entertainment, and voting Toledo the loveliest of cities to take an excursion from, and the Toledo people reciprocate by saying, Come again.

CAN FOSTER CRACK IT?

Powderly Offers Him a Hard Nut.

The Grand Master Places the Secretary of the Treasury in the Role of a Prevaricator.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—T. V. Powderly, the executive head of the Knights of Labor, has addressed to Secretary Foster a scorching letter on the plate printers' difficulty.

Powderly charges that Foster has descended to the most disreputable form of political trickery and that his boast that he has succeeded in arraying two labor organizations against each other is a falsehood, as the knights have no quarrel whatever with the Federation of Labor.

Accompanying Powderly's letter is all the correspondence which passed between Foster and the knights, including a fac simile of the secretary's letter to the discharged plate printer Jordan, in which Foster offered to reinstate him, and which letter Foster denied writing.

Mr. Powderly also shows that the trouble did not originate over the employment of a colored girl as an assistant to one of the plate printers, as has persistently been charged by the secretary and his friends.

He also alleges that when the committee of the knights called on the secretary they found him in total ignorance as to the origin of the trouble and, says Mr. Powderly, when Foster was asked as to his understanding of the trouble, he said: "I'll be d—d if I know."

Against Meredith, the superintendent of the bureau of engraving and printing, Powderly makes the most damaging charges. He is accused of immorality and drunkenness, and it is alleged that he used the most vile language toward the employes of his department. Mr. Powderly says he has in his possession affidavits concerning Meredith's conduct which are unfit for publication, so damaging are the charges.

Included in the open letter are letters from Major McKinley which show that he interested himself in bringing about a compromise. Powderly characterizes Foster as a cheap political trickster and says he disgraces an office which has been held by some of the ablest men in the nation. Powderly's letter is a most severe arraignment all the way through, and it will be circulated as a campaign document in Ohio.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bratten, of 521 Mulberry street, expect to spend a few weeks in Chicago in the near future.

Miss Lucy Dewey will return to her home in Detroit to-morrow after a three weeks' visit with Miss Mamie Rohmer, of Ontario street.

Miss Allison of Wheeling, W. Va., is the guest of her sister, Mrs. O. J. Hopkins, who is also entertaining Miss Stover, a teacher at the Xenia Home.

C. B. Johnson, of the firm of Johnson Bros., will spend the next week in Chicago and Grand Rapids, making selections of furniture for their fall trade.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Foster of Texas will in the near future visit friends and relatives in this city. Mrs. Foster, nee Segur, has a host of friends in Toledo.

Master George Seney will to-day go to Kenton to visit with his father, Judge J. R. Seney, who is the guest of his brother, Judge Henry Seney of that place. The health of Judge J. R. Seney has greatly improved, which is a pleasant hearing for his many friends in this city and vicinity.

For Indiana and lower Michigan—Generally fair, except light showers to-night; slightly warmer; south winds.

For upper Michigan and Illinois—Showers; stationary temperature, except slightly warmer in west upper Michigan and at Springfield; south winds.

For Wisconsin—Generally fair; except showers in south portions; slightly cooler, except stationary temperature in north portion; variable winds.

The Damaged Martini Here for Drydock.

The little steamer Richard Martini, which was sunk at Bar Point some weeks ago by the big steamer Specular, is at Gilmore's dry dock, into which she will go for repairs. The Specular struck her on the port side head on, making an immense hole which sunk her immediately. After being floated she had temporary repairs made at Detroit, and in a damaged condition went to Sandusky where she discharged her cargo of lumber. The steamer then came here for repairs.

Capt Tip Hunt, who is her owner as well as master, states that it will take about $1,200 to put the steamer in shape again, and that the vessel was not insured.

Junketing Congressmen.

Detroit is entertaining the junketing congressmen, who are looking up the lake marine. The visiting congressmen reached the city last evening after a most enjoyable run across the lake from Cleveland on the Fessenden. The lights, ranges and shoals from Bar point to the limekilns were pointed out and their importance fully explained by Capt. James Stone and Hon. George H. Ely, of Cleveland. To-day the party is being driven about the city and enjoy a yacht ride on the river. in the evening they leave for Mackinaw.

Maumee Wants a Steamboat.

The people of Maumee complain bitterly because none of the steamboats which have made up the river trips will go to their wharf. Year before last the village spent a large amount of money in dredging and building a good wharf under the promise that the Pastime would land there. That steamer made a few trips to Maumee, and since that time no excursion boats have stopped there. The Pastime people claimed that it was too much trouble to make a landing, and the captain of the steamer C. B. Wallace, now running to Miami and and Perrysburg, says that he cannot get in there. It is now thought that a mistake was made in not dredging the channel back of the big Island instead of outside. The present channel was dredged through hard gravel while the other would be a better channel and has a soft bottom. The people of Maumee consider that they have been defrauded out of their money, while if an excursion steamer made regular trips to this pretty village it would add much to its business and prosperity.

Struck a Rock.

ASHTABULA HARBOR, July 11.—The steamer German in coming into port Thursday night struck hard on a rock at the same point in the main river that the Corsica did last season. Her forward compartment immediately filled with water, and all effort to get her to dock was without avail.

Capt. George P. McKay, manager of the fleet, reached here and is superintending the work of lightering her. She will have to be lightered enough to raise her eighteen inches or two feet, and it will probably take a couple of days to do it, after which she will have to be taken to drydock for repairs.

The same obstruction cost the Corsica last season from $1,500 to $2,000, and it will no doubt cost the German as much, while a few hundred dollars spent in procuring a diver, locating the obstruction and getting a dredge to take it out would save all the trouble to the vessels and the reputation of the port. It is thought by practical men that it is a sharp pointed rock which has always been missed by the dredges. That the dredge which was set up here immediately after the Corsica was grounded did not get near it and that the only sure way to remove it is to locate it with a diver and have him see it is taken out when the dredge is working at it.

The Chicago Bridge Trouble.

CHICAGO, July 11.—At the close of the meeting of the board of United States engineers yesterday afternoon, conference committees were chosen by both marine interest and property owners, in order to secure a compromise if possible. The plan is to have the city take the present bridge out and put in one that will not obstruct navigation. This is likely to be done.

The Skater Sold.

Capt. John Miner has sold his little steamer Skater to Richard A. & John Seymour, northern Michigan excursion agents, for $9,500. The Skater is a new boat, costing $12,000, and her former owners sacrifices $2,500 on the sale. Competition on the Detroit river was too much for him. The boat will be taken north and run in the excursion business in and around Charlevoix, Petoskey and other points.

Port List.

ARRIVED.

Stmr Arundell, Detroit, pass and mdse.
Tug Wm McRae, Sarnia, Prussia in tow.
Schr Prussia, Sarnia, light.

CLEARED.

Stmr Arundell, Detroit, pass and mdse.

Schr Prussia, Pt Edwards, 250 tons coal.
Schr Smith & Post, Manitowoc, 366 tons coal.

Snags.

To-day has been a quiet one about the harbor.

The tug Worswick is off of Bowe's marine ways.

The steamer Arundell took the place of the Idlewild to Detroit to-day.

The steamer Egyptian was piloted out by the tug Schenck this morning.

The steambarge Avery arrived this morning at the Hocking dock for coal.

The tug Birchhead piloted out the coal laden steamer Onoko this morning.

The steambarge Ida, loaded at the Ironville docks with coal for St. Clair, cleared to-day.

The schooner Houghton has been chartered to carry iron ore from Escanaba to Toledo at 65 cents.

The steamer Missoula, loading coal at the Hocking dock, will probably leave before morning.

The Ohio Central dock was clear of every kind of craft to-day, not a single vessel being at the dock.

The propeller Toledo, of Ward's line, arrived this morning with a load of pig iron. The vessel is in the D & M slip.

The barge Prussia was brought in light by the tug W. F. McRae, of Wallaceburg. The Prussia is loadin coal at Ironville.

Capt. George Hardy, of the steam yacht H. P. Tobey, was laid up yesterday and his place was taken by Walter King. Capt. Hardy is back at his post to-day.

The steamer Idlewild is in dry dock at Detroit to-day, having her bottom scraped. She will return to Toledo to-night and go on her regular trips to-morrow.

There are now enrolled in the Detroit district 311 vessels with a total registered tonnage of 153,243. Of this number 105 are sail vessels, 156 steamers and twelve unrigged vessels.

The barge 104 loaded with coal at the Hocking dock broke her capstan off last night and is having it repaired. It is expected that she will get away to-day.

The following vessels are loading coal at the Hocking dock: Steamer Waldo Avery and consort H. A. Hawgood, steamer Western Reserve, schoonur L. Seston and steamer Missoula.

The sandsucker Ohio pumped out a sunken scow near the red stake inside of Presque Isle. The scow was lost several weeks ago, but was not found until Thursday, when the steambarge Martini ran on to it while coming in. The Martini was pulled off by the tug Natt Stickney.

Among other aids to navigation that will be demanded of the next congress is the establishment of the Rock Harbor light on the northeastern part of Isle Royal, Lake Superior. This light will be of especial importance on account of the increasing coal trade to Fort William and Port Arthur from Ohio ports. It will be remembered that the fine Canadian Pacific ore dock at Algoma went to pieces near the point in question a few years ago.

Democratic Primaries.

The democratic primaries of the city of Toledo, to select delegates and alternates to the Cleveland convention, will be held this afternoon from 4 to 8 o'clock. Democrats should turn out, and aid in the selection of representative men.

THERE was nothing marvelous about the lake around Salton after all. It is a shallow bit of water that has leaked in from the Colorado river. What a lot of scientific speculation has been wasted, to be sure.

THE Parnell-Healy war increases in virulence and disgraces all factions engaged in it. We are threatened now with sensational revelations regarding the reason for Healy's persecution of Mrs. O'Shea-Parnell. Spare us!

A REPUBLICAN exchange remarks, "Let the prosperous pay the taxes." That is good democratic doctrine. The trouble is that for the past two decades the bulk of the taxes has been paid by the farmers and poor laboring men of the country.

THE advices relative to the murders of missionaries and their families in China are grave reading. If the reports of these atrocities are confirmed there will be found better business for United States war vessels than interference between Chilian belligerents.

THE nominations to be made at Cleveland next week will close up the ranks in the army of Ohio democrats. There will be no dissensions, no quarrels, but shoulder to shoulder Ohio's gallant democracy will advance upon the common enemy—McKinleyism.

THE Cleveland World says: "The republican party of Ohio will present a solid phalanx with the greatest statesman of the country at their head this fall." It might have added that all the monopolists and protected manufacturers of the country will be at its back.

IT is now authoritatively announced that Gov. Campbell's name will be presented at the Cleveland convention by Gen. M. T. Ryan, of Cincinnati, and that Byron Ritchie, of this city, will second. So far as oratory is concerned our own Byron may be compared with the best of them. The job will be nicely done.

KAISER WILHELM is as lively in England as when he is at home. If ever the ruler of a kingdom earned his little salary the young emperor of Germany is the man. He goes from banquet to review and back again with the alacrity of a school boy in the play-ground. It makes one dizzy just to read of his merry-go-round in the country of his grandmama.

ONE argument of the anti-suffragists, that woman should not vote because she cannot fight, is set back by the report on the murder of Mrs. Green, wife of the collector of Chinese customs at Wusich. Mr. Green was tortured by the mob, having his head slowly crushed between heavy stones. His wife was killed while defending him, but not until she had slain four men and wounded three others with a sword.

MESSRS. MCCLURE and Nicolay continue to exchange discourtesies through the press and by telegraph. The matter at issue is not as momentous as the space given to its discussion would indicate, but its upspringing confirms the belief that it is safe for no man to die since he must leave his reputation behind him. The names dragged about in this discussion are nearly all those of dead men.

THE changed form of treasury statement is a measure of the cunning of Secretary Foster. The man who cannot see through it can neither add nor subtract. The cash balance, this statement says, "including gold reserve, fractional silver and deposits in national banks," is $148,974,808. This looks like a big showing, and Secretary Foster meant it should. But the items of gold reserve, fractional currency and deposits in national banks cannot properly be included in a "cash balance." These items aggregate $145,385,244. Deducting them, the actual cash balance in the treasury is exactly $3,589,564. Great figurer, our Charley!

THE total imports of iron and steel for the last ten months aggregated $39,245,464. Of this $24,298,937 consisted of tinplate. The most of this import was held by republican speculators until after July 1, in order that the tax they had fixed upon the imported tin after that date might be collectible, and they might then sell and pocket the difference. On the retail sale of articles of tin this added cost is reckoned in. Over and over again it must be told that every tax on an article that is bought comes from the purchaser's pocket. The whole secret of the success of unnecessary, indirect taxation, lies in the fact that the people do not understand they pay these taxes. They must learn to understand this. When they do an era of tariff for revenue only will be permanently established. The revenues of a government come from all the people. The people of a nation should always be willing to be taxed enough to raise sufficient revenue for the economic administration of the government's affairs. They would not submit to a direct tax beyond that point. They will not submit to the indirect tax covered up under the plea of "protecting infant industries" once they understand that this is a tax, that they pay it, and that by the legerdemain of their lawmakers it is diverted into the pockets of a favored few.

AN ADMINISTRATION DISGRACED

The relation of Postmaster-General Wanamaker to the Keystone bank swindle is nothing short of a disgrace to the entire Harrison administration. The revelations before the investigating committee yesterday were shocking and serious, but, carefully weighed, the worst thing about them is the conclusion which must be drawn that the bottom of the matter is not yet reached, and that more political filth will be stirred up before it is.

The testimony of the gentlemen connected with the Philadelphia Ledger was in substance that Bardsley's unpublished statement held by them revealed, among other things: 1. That Postmaster-General Wanamaker held over-issued stock in the bank which he knew to be a fraudulent issue, and for the return of which he demanded $100,000. 2. That a formal demand was made upon him for the return of these shares, in which he was notified that he was guilty of a crime in holding them, and (3) that he refused to give them up on this demand, until he was informed that he would be publicly prosecuted for holding them. 4. That he then gave up the stock, but not until after on his instructions the comptroller of the currency had closed the bank.

Other revelations of Bardsley's statement are that Bank Examiner Drew had been a heavy borrower from the bank, and consequently at the dictation of the officers had, to cover up his own private fraud, failed in his duty to the public as an official; that President Marsh of the bank had visited the comptroller at Washington, and made a full revelation to him of the condition of the bank and Wanamaker's connection therewith last March. In an interview with Comptroller Lacey at Washington this last statement is practically admitted by that gentleman. It is known that the statement of Drew's indebtedness has been confirmed, and he has been allowed to resign.

On his own behalf Mr. Wanamaker appeared before the committee yesterday, and made a general denial of all the charges of crooked transactions. A letter was also read before the committee from Bardsley denying that he had made the statement which was offered in testimony by the representatives of the Ledger.

The BEE speaks for itself and its readers when it says nothing is more earnestly hoped than that Mr. Wanamaker can make good his denials. That he is of a political faith not advocated by this paper has no weight in a crisis like this. He holds his position, it is true, as a gift from the republican party, but it is a position that makes him the representative of the nation. That such charges as these can be even preferred against a man in such position is a national calamity. If they be proven they will disgrace us all in the eyes of the civilized world. We are disgraced by them until they are clearly disproved.

And things look dark for Mr. Wanamaker. He knew he held bogus stock. His straightforward course was to give it up the moment he had that knowledge, and not to pause to dicker on having it made good, even had he been until that hour holding it in all innocence.

He claims that Comptroller Lacey was not influenced by him to delay the appointment of a receiver for the Keystone, but the comptroller did delay to do this, for weeks after he knew its condition. Why?

Again, why was Bank Examiner Drew allowed to resign, when he should have been dismissed in disgrace?

These are ugly questions, but if the answers to them will clear up to his honor the postmaster-general's connection with the Keystone muddle, he should insist upon their being answered, fully and promptly. If he does not, the people will. As for the denial Mr. Bardsley has made, it rests with the Ledger people not to lie under the imputation of having fabricated the Bardsley statement, and they will doubtless make their case good, even though they lose a little advertising thereby.

Bardsley is no doubt a thief and a liar, and is ready and anxious to lie some more if it will help to shorten his term of imprisonment. But behind the incarcerated Bardsley, and the mysteriously-lost Marsh, it is evident other guilty parties cower in concealment. Who are they? And why should there appear to be a conspiracy on the part of the government officials to keep some part of the history of this swindling, rotten business from the public? Let the truth come out. It is bound to come.

M'KINLEY AND THE FARMER.

"What has McKinley done for the farmer?" asks the Des Moines Leader, and then it points out that "hay in Iowa has cost the farmer $15 a ton, while he cannot sell a grass-fatted cow in the home market for more than about $18." Our esteemed contemporary should know that what McKinley has done for the farmer is easily counted in what the farmer buys under a McKinleyed tariff.

Under this tariff the farmer can (and must) pay more for his fruit and milk cans and pans; for every machine used on the farm; for his bagging for grain; for his household cottons; for the dress goods bought for his wife and children, the tax on dress goods being increased from 9 cents a square yard and 40 per cent. to 12 cents and 50 per cent.; for the ingrain carpets he buys, if he dare afford to buy any, the tax on which McKinley's bill increased from 8 cents per square yard and 30 per cent. to 14 cents per square yard and 40 per cent.; for his own ready-made clothing, under a tax increased from 40 cents a pound and 35 per cent. to 49½ cents and 60 per cent.

This is a part of what McKinley has done for the farmer. What the farmer will do for McKinley was in a measure demonstrated in the Sixteenth congressional district of Ohio last fall. A fuller answer to this last question the farmers of the state await the opportunity to give next November.

A BUNCH OF PINKS.

We were riding home together and incidentally made mention of the class about to graduate from the High school.

"We have taken great interest in this class," he said, quietly. "Had my daughter staid with us she would probably have been in its ranks. Several of those who were with her in the lower grades are now graduating, and as we watched their progress we seemed to see our own child with them."

I said nothing.

"I never meet one of her companions," he continued, "but that I make measurement of my child's growth. I say to myself, 'if E had lived she would have been as tall as you; you two were just about the same size at the time she left us.' I see another expanding into womanhood, with her mind shining in her face, and I say, 'Our E would have looked just like you.' So this class has had interest for us in its every step, and I am almost sorry to see it leave the school. You have lost children," he said, after a few moments silence, "do you feel as it they were keeping in touch with what is happening to us and their former companions here?"

"Their mother feels that and believes it wholly and unreservedly," I answered evasively.

"Ah, yes; mothers never doubt," he said; "I wish I didn't. Yet in spite of all that I find myself acting upon the belief that she grows as children grows here; that she is interested in all that happens here, and that her world is not so far away but that she is taking note of the graduation of this class, I think she would be happy if her flowers were worn that night by some of her companions whom she loved."

* * *

A mother was busy preparing her graduate for the exercises of the evening. All the dainty things were gathered for the final toilet, and all that love could do was being done to help make the daughter presentable and happy. The flowers were there for the stage; ribbons were tied and retied; the unruly crimps were once again tucked into the proper place.

A ring came to the door.

A messenger boy with flowers.

There must be a mistake, the boy was told; the flowers had been received some time ago. But no; this is the address. The box is opened. They belong here. A fragrant bouquet of white pinks and maiden's hair ferns. The card said "From Mrs. W.," but the flowers said from E." The white petals spoke for the one who was speechless. The delicate fragrance was full of memories.

"I will carry none but these," the daughter said, and the mother was silent, for she was thinking of her own treasures.

And so the flowers were on the stage that evening, and the daughter said when she was home again: "I thought of E. and I hope she knew."

The mother answered quietly but emphatically:

"She knew." WM. H. MAHER.

Will Inspire Enthusiasm.

Governor Campbell is as certain to be renominated, if he lives till next Wednesday, as the democratic state convention is to meet in Cleveland on that day. Able, brilliant, magnetic, he will inspire the rank and file with his own enthusiasm and indomitable courage, and lead such a furious onslaught on McKinley and the high taxes as that they will go down before the tariff reform army as did the redoubtable Foraker and his cohorts two years ago.—Dayton Times.

No Democrat Will Refuse.

Let the result of our approaching state convention be as it may, we earnestly hope that no true democrat will lessen his zeal for the future interest of our party. There never has been a time in the history of our party in this country when it needed the support of its true and tried leaders as it does now, and it is to be hoped that no true democrat will refuse, or even hesitate to stand up to the work and do his whole duty to his party.—Waverly Watchman.

Perhaps So.

There's to be a Knights of Labor convention at Toledo early in November. There's to be an election in Ohio about the same time. It may be that Secretary Foster somewhat influenced the choice of Toledo.—Lima Times.

Well, Hardly.

Nearly every state in the Union repudiated the McKinley tariff law last fall by increasing the democratic representation in congress. Do the people of Ohio propose to sustain the iniquitous law by electing the author of that law as governor?—Bellaire Democrat.

The Old Strain.

The Montgomery and Brown county delegations as well as old Wyandot can be counted in the Campbell column. On July 15 we will listen to the old familiar strain, "The Campbell's are coming."—Middletown Signal.

All Gone.

Cleveland left the presidential chair with a surplus of $150,000,000 in the treasury, which has all been squandered by a republican congress and Benny Harrison's office-holders.—Chillicothe Advertiser.

Put Up the Rooster.

The old democratic rooster is good enough for us. Let the crowing bird ornament our tickets and no democrat will make a mistake in the ticket he is voting. —Springfield Democrat.

Keep Him to the Point.

The Ohio democrats must keep William McKinley talking about his tariff bill and his record as the republican leader of the billion-dollar congress, and nothing else.—N. Y. World.

Why Is It?

The McKinley law increases the duty on wool, and yet our farmers must sell at a reduced price. Why is this thusly? Strange, passing strange it is, but how to explain, that's the question.—Paulding Democrat.

Include Harpster.

Is not the time ripe for those old rams, Judge Lawrence, of Bellefontaine, and Columbus Delano, of Mt. Vernon, to issue a screed on the wool question!—Zanesville Signal.

Should be Suppressed.

That Canton "rain doctor" with his rabbit's foot and red bean should be suppressed. He might make Canton a stormy center and swamp McKinley.—Columbus Post.

Paradoxical.

There is something paradoxical about the news from Ohio that the Foraker men are in control of the republican committee and that the gas wells have given out. —Chicago Times.

Will Both Be In It.

The champions of McKinley should remember that the farmers and the Australian ballot law "will be in it."—Youngstown Vindicator.

Got What They Wanted.

The Farmers' alliance and knights of labor demanded the Australian ballot law and the democratic party has given it to them.—Newark Advocate.

No Fault of Its Own.

The billion congress broke the record, and it was through no fault of its own that it didn't break the country.—Atlanta Journal.

Blaine's Difficulty.

Mr. Blaine's principal difficulty seems to be an acute attack of doctors and newspaper correspondents.—Washington Post.

ANOTHER STORM COMING

Additional Rain Fall is Due Next Week,

To Be Followed by More the Week After.

The Rainy Weather for the Crop Season Is Nearly Over and a Long Dry Spell Can Be Expected.

Special to the BEE.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 11.—My last letter gave forecasts of the storm wave due to cross the continent from 12th to 16th, and the next one will be due to leave the Pacific coast about the 18th, cross the Rocky-Allegheny valley from 19th to 21st and reach the Atlantic coast about the 22d.

The important feature of this storm wave will be the inauguration of the last general rain period that will occur during the 1891 crop season.

Of course it will not cause rains in every county in the United States, but the rains will be somewhat similar to those of the first half of June and a number of those destructive rainfalls, popularly termed cloudbursts, may be expected. This rain period will continue at intervals till the close of the month.

Deficiencies in rainfall will probably occur in those countries that are both near sea level and near the seacoast.

As stated in my letters a year ago the influences will continue to carry the heavy rainfalls inland, away from the seacoasts and to the more elevated lands.

Tornadoes may be expected from this storm wave as it crosses the Mississippi valley, and altogether it will be of more than usual severity.

The rain period inaugurated by this storm wave will largely determine what the corn crop of 1891 is to be, and its influences on the cotton crop will be only a little less extensive, for where this rain period fails to give the necessary moisture will be in great danger of drouth in August.

I have all the time believed that 1891 would bring a large general crop, because great storm years are almost always great crop years. Local damages to crops occur from destructive storms and local drouths, but these will affect comparatively small areas this year and will not greatly reduce the crop products. Later events may have a material influence on the crop of cotton.

Cloud Bursts.

This term is a misnomer. There is no such a thing as a cloud burst. The event is exactly the reverse of what its popular term implies, for it is a coming together of clouds instead of a parting asunder.

The term water spout is also used to indicate a similar weather event, but waterspouts occur on the sea where the water is taken up where these terms, waterspouts and cloud bursts, are popularly used to denote a great downpour of water.

It will be impossible to change the habit of the daily and weekly press in the use of these terms, and as they constitute the only channel through which to reach the masses we must submit to the misuse of the terms. I am not writing for the scientists but for the people, and I must use the language of the people.

All hail storms, cloud bursts and water spouts are caused by tornadoes, but only a small portion of these tornadoes reach the surface of the earth.

Electricity is the force of these tornadoes and its operations are such as to give to the tornado storm the shape of an hour glass, therefore, when the storm is elevated its lower parts spread out over a large territory and then we do not experience great wind force on the surface of the earth, but when the tornado is lower in the atmosphere its middle, that part corresponding to the middle of the hourglass, is on the earth's surface and then we see the tornado in its greatest force.

A great current of electricity streams from the earth upward carrying with it the atmosphere on the atoms of which the electricity moves by connection.

This lifting of the atmosphere causes other atmosphere to rush in to fill the space vacated and this inrush of atmosphere brings together vast cloud accumulations with such great force that they are piled up miles in depth and being pressed together by the powerful inflow of air the water is squeezed out of them in such great quantities as to cause that which is termed a cloud burst or waterspout.

The center of this tornado storm spouts the clouds and moist air to great elevations where the mists are frozen and when they again begin to fall to the earth they must come back through these many miles of clouds, gathering moisture from them as they fall and thus forming the hail stones. These conditions must exist before hail can be formed and the greater the upspouting tornado force the higher it will drive the moisture and the larger will be the hailstones.

Orthodox meteorologists declare that heat is the moving force of the tornado, but they cannot reconcile with their theory the fact that tornadoes always produce hail.

W. F. FOSTER.

We Live and Let Live.

The persistence of the Toledo Blade in refusing to publish news from North Baltimore of a nature creditable to the rapid growth of the place is extremely selfish and boggish on the part of that paper. Such persistent ignoring of the people of North Baltimore, if continued in, will work an injury to the business firms of Toledo, who find an increasing and prosperous market in this little city. Contrast the selfish policy of the Blade with the liberality of the Toledo BEE, whose circulation is becoming greater every day in this fast growing town. The BEE gives the greatest prominence to any news appertaining to the prosperity of North Baltimore.—North Baltimore Times.

Would Be a Strong Candidate.

The friends of Judge Day, of Celina, are urging him to allow his name to go before the state convention as a candidate for supreme judge. If the judge was as well know over the state as in the district where he presides, his nomination and election would be assured. He is an unassuming and intelligent gentleman and would add strength to the ticket. The entire northwest would support him regardless of political affiliations.—Wapakoneta Times.

Work With One Mind.

When the convention has done its work and the ticket is named, it, therefore, behooves us all to go to work with one mind determined to triumphantly elect it and thus stamp McKinleyism with public disapproval to the end that right may prevail and everybody's condition be improved.—Fayette Register-Democrat.

Good Words for Marquis.

Hon. W. V. Marquis, two years ago, made a successful run for the office of lieutenant-governor, and as president of the senate he was always fair and pleasant. He was one of the most popular lieutenant-governors that has ever filled the place. He will be renominated and poll the full strength of his ticket at the election.—Shelby County Democrat.

What is Needed.

What the harbors and channels of this lake region needs is not inspection by individual congressmen on a junket, so much as it does "the old flag and an appropriation," seeing that patriotic appropriations are so much in vogue that the treasury can afford to "handle a deficit" on that account.—Sandusky Journal.

Clubs and Boodle.

The Pittsburg Dispatch remarks that one of the chief advantages Major McKinley will have in his campaign in Ohio will be the system of republican clubs. This is correct. The clubs and boodle will be the chief reliance for victory. Argument and oratory will be used merely for dress parade purposes.—Canton Democrat.

Moulds for casting iron can only be made in sand. Iron or other metallic moulds chill the iron, and it does not fill well. The great heat at which iron melts will burn any other material, or will stick so as to break the mould.

CORNER-STONE LAYING.

Catholic Societies Will Assist St. Hedwig's Congregation To-Morrow.

The corner stone of the new Polish church will be laid to-morrow afternoon with impressive ceremonies. The various Catholic societies of the city will participate in the exercises.

A parade will precede the event. Peter Sbclanckuweiz is the grand marshal and John Henry assistant.

The Great Western band will meet the Fifth ward societies at St. Peter's church on St. Clair street.

At 1:15 o'clock the march will be taken up from St. Clair, to Monroe, to Summit, to Cherry, to Superior. Here the societies of St. Francis de Sales will fall in. The march will continue to Locust to Erie, where they will be joined by the societies of St. Joseph. The line will move to Locust, to Ontario, to Cherry, where the societies of St. Mary's church will be met. The East Toledo societies will be at the corner of Summit and Cherry at 1:30 o'clock.

The procession will form as follows: Grand marshal, corner of Superior and Cherry streets; Polish uniform rank, Cherry, resting on Superior; Toledo council, C. K. of A., east side of Superior, right resting on Cherry; St. Francis de Sales congregation, west side of Superior; St. Mary's congregation, north Huron; St. Patrick's congregation, south Huron; St. Peter's congregation, south Huron; Immaculate Conception congregation, north Erie; St. Joseph's, north Erie; Good Shepherd, south Erie; St. Louis, south Erie; St. Anthony, north Ontario; Sacred Heart, north Ontario; St. Hedwig's, south Ontario. Carriages will form on Market Space.

The line of march will be Cherry to Franklin avenue, to Locust, to Delta, to church.

BRANCHING OUT.

Col. Smead Will Sell His Down-Town Buildin; and Erect One Near His Factory.

Rumor has it that Col. Isaac D. Smead proposes erecting a handsome building in connection with his factory in Auburndale. Speaking with a BEE yesterday Mr. Smead said: "I have some idea of building, but my intention is to sell my down-town office (the handsome office on Superior street), and to erect in connection with the factory in Auburndale one similar to it. The building here, as you see, is one well adapted for the wholesale business or salesrooms of any nature."

The building is one of the finest in Toledo, and was built three years ago at a cost of $42,000.

BYRON RITCHIE

Will Second Gov. Campbell's Nomination,

While Gen. M. H. Ryan Will Make the First Speech—Such is the Arrangement for Next Week.

Mr. Claude Meeker, Gov. Campbell's private secretary, was in the city yesterday for a short time shaking hands with friends, of whom he has a great many in Toledo. While here he requested our fellow-townsman, Mr. Byron F. Ritchie, to make the speech seconding the nomination of Gov. Campbell at the democratic state convention in Cleveland next week.

Mr. Meeker informed a BEE that the governor's name would likely be presented to the convention by Gen. Michael Ryan, of Cincinnati, who by his brilliant eloquence has gained for himself the title of "the silver-tongued Irish orator." Gen. Ryan, it will be remembered, made the nominating speech for Governor Hoadly at Columbus, and those who were fortunate enough to hear it can testify that it was, to use a common phrase, "a corker." His effort next Wednesday will be none the less brilliant.

As to the genial Byron Ritchie, his ability as a happy speaker needs not to be stated to BEE readers. He is among the few men in Toledo one never tires of hearing. Sparkling with originality and quick in perception, he never fails to drive home with a clincher every sentence uttered. Added to these qualifications, he has always been a working democrat, being at present engaged as the chairman of the committee appointed by Lucas county democrats to formulate a plan of organization for future campaigns.

Toledo democrats are proud of Mr. Ritchie, and all will feel satisfied that he will more than maintain his reputation at the Cleveland convention.

Ryan and Ritchie will prove a great team. The honors could not have been more worthily bestowed. The two gentlemen will make good speeches because their hearts are in the cause, both being warm friends and admirers of Governor Campbell.

THE LINCOLN CONTROVERSY.

Mr. Nicolay's indignant assertion that Mr. Lincoln was favorable to Mr. Hamlin's renomination for vice-president in 1864 was one word for Hamlin and 25 or 30 for Mr. Nicolay's book.—Kansas City Star.

In setting up an exclusive right to speak for Mr. Lincoln on confidential political matters Mr. Nicolay has rushed into a controversy that will not mend either his history or his reputation.—Chicago Herald.

The matter is not one of thrilling interest to the public. The controversy will result in wide and liberal advert sing for Nicolay's book and McClure's paper. But, so far as the truth of the matter is concerned, Nicolay appears to have the weight of evidence on his side.—Grand Rapids Democrat.

This man Nicolay, who tried to advertise his memoirs of Abraham Lincoln by sending that telegram to Mrs. Hamlin, is being most beautifully and righteously roasted for his officious presumption by Col. McClure of the Philadelphia Times. Nicolay's assumption of his importance in the affairs of Lincoln is as disgusting as it without justification in fact.—Chicago Times.

Many of the intimate political friends of Lincoln, those men who might rightly be considered his political heirs and executors, afterwards joined the democratic party. Lincoln would most likely have done the same, for he was a man who steadily but surely marched along the path of progress, and kept in touch with the "plain people."—Boston Globe.

It is quite possible that Mr. Lincoln may have expressed to Mr. Nicolay and Mr. Cook his personal preference for Hamlin and to Mr. McClure his belief that a southern vice-president would be "good politics." Neither opinion would have been persistently urged, for Mr. Lincoln's dominant idea was not to interfere with the action of the convention, and it was obviously not his place to take sides strongly for any candidate.—Brooklyn Times.

It is enough for these who linger yet a little longer upon the darker side of the shores of time and thought to be assured that each, Johnson and Hamlin, in his own way, was a patriotic man, who loved his country; but the chief of the three and greatest of all, was that peerless spirit, raised up by God for a purpose and as mysteriously removed, of whom the angel of the Lord has written: "He loved his fellow men."—Courier Journal.

There can be no doubt whatever that if Mr. Lincoln had desired the renomination of Mr. Hamlin it would have been made. There was this excuse for it—that his renomination would have compelled the south to acknowledge both of the men against whose first election it had rebelled. The clear inference, therefore, is that Mr. Lincoln had no personal feeling for Hamlin that could influence action in his favor. —Rochester Post-Express.

Colonel McClure's statement of what was said to him by Mr. Lincoln cannot be controverted. He is a man of honor and it is not possible for Mr. Nicolay to controvert his word. As to the competency of Mr. Nicolay as a private secretary, that is another matter. Colonel McClure has his opinion and no doubt it is an honest one. Others, perhaps, have a contrary opinion. President Lincoln himself was the only one who could speak with authority and the fact that he kept Nicolay with him may be cited in the latter's favor.—Rochester Herald.

Where is Foraker?

The rebel flags are to be displayed at the world's fair. Great guns! where's Joey B. Foraker!—Mansfield Shield and Banner.

THE CLEVELAND MEMBERS

To Be Entertained by the Ohio Yacht Club.

Toledo to Have Another Steam Yacht.

John Weber Purchases Her in New York and is Steaming Around the Coast—To Be Received in Toledo.

Thursday, July 23, a party of about 50 gentlemen from Cleveland will come to Toledo and be entertained by the members of the Ohio Yacht club. Of the 40 non-resident members of the club 28 reside in Cleveland. It is these, with a party of friends, who are coming.

A committee of 15 Toledo members has been appointed with Commodore Geo. H. Ketcham as chairman to meet the party at Put-in-Bay and bring them to the city on the City of Toledo.

In the evening the visitors will be royally entertained at the club quarters in the city. An elaborate program will be arranged. The following morning the party will be taken about the city by a committee of citizens and shown everything of interest.

Friday evening they will be given a big time at the island club house. The club will arrange an old-fashioned torchlight parade, and there will no end of red fire and fun. The O. Y. C. intends to show the Clevelanders that Toledo is chock full of hospitality, and the Future Great in every sense of the term.

The Ohio Yacht club, as is usual with this good-humored organization, has also another approaching pleasantry on tapis. Last evening John Weber, of this city, was made a member. Mr. Weber has just purchased in New York a handsome steam yacht, 53 feet in length. He with a party will cruise up around the Atlantic coast, up the St. Lawrence, and through the lakes to Toledo.

It is expected that she will be here about August 15. James Pheatt, Herman Klauser, James Faskins, Dennison Steele and Frank Lee have been appointed a committee to receive the boat. The party will be given a hearty reception, and a welcome addition will be made to the O. Y. C. fleet. The club has sent an O. Y. C. pennant to Mr. Weber.

There was a good summer attendance at the meeting of the club last evening, over which Vice Commodore Herman Klauser presided. Capt. John Mellink presented the club with an elegant 16th century table and J. C. Meddler donated 10 bound volumes of Puck, for all of which due thanks were extended.

E. T. Reeve, of Hotel Normandy, Detroit, was elected a member.

The next monthly meeting will be held at the Presque Isle club house.

MIDDLE STATES REGATTA.

A Model Day for the Eastern Oarsmen.

Hedley Won the Quarter Mile Dash—Three Trial Heats in the Single Sculls.

NEWARK, N. J., July 11.—The weather conditions were very favorable for the oarsmen who competed in the Middle States' regetta on the Passaic river. There was bright sunshine, little or no breeze, and smooth water.

The trial heats which were rowed in the morning, were started from the foot of Fourth avenue, opposite the institute boat club house. The course was up stream above the flood tide to the Midland bridge, a distance of one and a half miles.

The first trial heat for junior singles was the first event. It was a close race for a mile between Holden, Kearns and Carney, but Kearns, Institute Boat club, Newark, brought up in the mud and suddenly stopped, Carney, Institute Boat club, Newark, winning easily in 10:21. Holden, Palisade Boat club, was second in 10:28⅘.

The second event was the second trial heat for junior singles with four entries.

Van Balthuysen, Passaic boat club, quickly walked away from his competitors and won in 10:08⅘; Wilson, Elizabeth, was second in 10:27⅘. Coburn, institute boat club, stopped rowing through ignorance of the finish line location.

The third event was the third trial heat for junior singles. Morgan, Excelsior boat club, won in 9:45; Glannini, New York A. C. was second in 9:57; Janeuck, Metropolitan boat club, was third.

The fourth event was a one-quarter mile dash, single sculls. Hedley, Vesper boat club, Philadelphia, won in 57 seconds, breaking the record of 1:08 on this course, but the tide was fairly strong in his favor. The dead water record is 1:11. Hawkins, Manhattan Athletic club, New York, was second.

A HARD CASE.

Minnie O'Hara Objects to Sentence and Attempts to Throw a Chair at Judge Sala.

Minnie O'Hara was sentenced in police court this morning for the third or fourth time in the past few weeks for being drunk. Judge Sala told her last time that she was arrested that if she was up again he would give her the full extent of the law, which he did do this morning—$20 and costs. To this Miss Minnie objected, and used very strong language in her argument with the judge, winding up by picking up a chair and attempting to throw it at him, but in this she was overpowered by an officer and induced to remain quiet, for a few minutes, when the judge fined her $20 and costs for contempt of court.

When she was being taken out of the court room Minnie again became unmanageable and threw a chair over into the prisoners' box. She was finally gotten out of the room and quiet restored. As Minnie is unable to pay her fines she will spend most of the summer at the work house.

The Same String.

J. H. Brigham was the defeated republican candidate for congress in the Sixth district. Then he turned up at Columbus to oppose the formation of a third party by the farmers. Now a republican president has given him an office. It would appear that the same string ran through all these facts.—Massillonian.

COMMON SENSE QUESTIONS.

TO THE EDITOR: Why do you protectionists put any tariff-tax on goods of any description if you state the truth when you say that a tariff-tax cheapens every article upon which such tax is levied. If your statements are facts you had better to meet the point you are claiming to aim at to protect your fat-frying manufacturers, take off all the duty—because if addition of tariff-tax makes the goods cheaper, would it not follow logically that no duty at all would be better. Suppose you try it a little further and see if it won't work according to your statement. It seemed to be very satisfactory on the "sugar string," only try it without the subsidy attachment of 2 cents to the sugar men.

How do you like "Icicle" John Sherman's talk on your flat-mixed silver dollar. Old-Whisky-John don't seem to say many encouraging things for your silver magnates—what's the matter with that old creature—he seems to be acting very badly—his new harness you are trying to make fit him seems to pinch somewhere and the "old mule" gets frisky and kicks over the traces—haven't you been sitting down on John too hard of late?

What's the matter—can't you let up a little on the "goody-goody" Mr. Wanamaker and not force him into the Bardsley case—don't crowd him in where he will get a scorching on this side of the river. Wait till he gets over.

What do you think about the Campbellite revival now? How does the horizon appear to your obscured vision? Can you see any converts coming into the McKinley camp? Have you heard of any such a circumstance? Why don't your mammoth "protection" papers come out with a list of converts from James E. Campbell and announce their faith in the tin-plate tinker? Don't you think that gold of our country is going the wrong way just at present for the good of our country, and especially at a time when such a circumstance rather discourages young converts to the McKinley clans? Too many failures for a healthy hope for poor Billy's "protection prattle" to reach the right spot.

What was the trouble with "Calico Charlie" on "Labor Day?" He should have been on hand to assist in the great work of pulverizing the rum power." Certainly no man extant is better qualified to perform that little job—the great "secretary" has had extensive experience in manipulating the "jug" since away back among his old "Seneca county groceries"—the old "jug" has done too much service for "Charlie" in days past when "Charlie" was educating himself for the successful success of his systematic Scott law funny-fix. So, gents, deal gently with him in your little delinquencies as absenting himself from the great temperance prohibition fiasco. Excuse him, please.

Do you recollect the peculiar position of old John Sherman at the time of the passage of the "salary-grab-robbery," when he said in his celebrated speech delivered on that occasion that "no man could go to congress and, at either $8,000 or $5,000 per year, live in Washington respectably and come out clear of debt at such a salary?"

Query—How could "John" come out a "millionaire"—for it is well known that he was poor when he "spoke his first piece" in congress? Curious, isn't it?

What can we naturally expect as a result of this coming to Ohio of "Reed," the congressional "regulator," to preside over the "Buckeye" and jam them around as he did the suffering members of the "Billion Dollar Congress?" He has probably a small model of his pet "Force bill" to use in the general attempt to "force" Tin-plate Billy into the Campbellite quarters, but the most positive fact on earth is that he will fail in his job by a "large majority." He will have to bring along that wicked Dudley and the pious pair, little Bennie and "Keystone Wanamaker," and those apparently solvent banks in old Philadelphia and other eastern towns. "Better look leetle out" and not let the gang "tap their tills" on the "Bardsley" bung-starter style.

How are "Dudley," "Quay" and "little Bennie" getting on together? "Bennie" has pardoned them for their sins committed in connection with his "bribery business" when he was elevated. How is it?

Did you ever hear of a man suffering with various kinds of sickness so severely as our great secretary of state? His sufferings are simply horrible. Every one can form some idea of "falling sickness," such as he had in the days of Sullivan letters, and the "Mrs. Fisher" business, "Kentucky shot-gun" tombstone episode, and the Hocking valley bond villiany. Such and too many of a similar nature to here enumerate is sufficient cause for "falling sickness," gout, sunstroke, paralysis, and in most cases carry them out in Bardsley style in fifteen to fifty years of solitary and serious opportunity of pondering upon their past years of "cussedness" and "crookedness," and still there are some idiots that will chatter about "Jim's" "chances" for pulling on little Bennie's boots. What is your candid conclusion?

Yet after all the gloomy forebodings we must indulge in from some stubborn facts staring us in the face, yet after careful consideration you are confronted with wonderful harmony hovering over and around the party, it is hard to consider the party played out when we witness the peace and quiet that reigns and has always reigned in the primaries, conventions and conclaves of all kind in the g. o. p. Think of our quiet dignified samples of their meetings in our city and go as far back as the Chicago convention such perfect peace and harmony for eleven days and a half, and then the colored gentleman Langston never gets angry nor any of his people out in Indiana and all quiet in the cabinet.

Why was it that you legislators in your republican congress did not put in the proper quantity of silver in the pious silver dollar that old Iceberg John is fixing at—was it because you had no confidence in the coin called a dollar? It would seem so from the motto put on the celebrated coin, viz.: "In God We Trust." and now it you seem to be losing confidence in your statement aforesaid. We would be glad to know what spiritual and financial adviser you do rely upon. That Catholic priest that involved a blessing from the great Jehovah in the opening of your great menagerie in Chicago, or upon Pagan Bob, who closed the concern with his farcical agnostic doxology.

Well, we are still patiently waiting for a list of prices paid by our woolen garment manufacturers and our plush garment makers. While these gentlemen are pondering upon the matter—whether they ought to manifest sufficient honesty in community to give a schedule of their price list, which they seem to be afraid or ashamed to give—we will ask our "tin-box" manufacturers to give us a list of their prices paid to their employes two or three years ago, and also since the little-billy tin-plate tinker has been around with his gang and "Little Bennie" pushed his celebrated pen for protection, and we will pay our most respectful respects to our coffee and spice concerns and see if their conscience will tolerate them in such awful sins of omission as neglect to enlighten the people as to the prices paid by them to their employes and tell us if the condition of their employes is up to the level of old darky slaves down in Dixie. THE SWIMMER OF NEMI.

White through the azure,
The purple blueness
Of Nemi's waters
The swimmer goeth.
Ivory white, or wan white as roses,
Yellowed and tanned by the suns of the Orient,
His strong limbs sever the violet hollows;
A shimmer of white fantastic motions
Wavering deep through the lake as he swimmeth;
Like gorse in the sunlight the gold of his yellow hair,
Yellow with sunshine and bright as with dew-drops,
Spray of the waters flung back as he tosseth
His head in the sunlight in the midst of his laughter;
Red o'er his body, blossom-white 'mid the blueness,
And trailing behind him in glory of scarlet,
A branch of the red-berried ash of the mountains,
White as a moonbeam
Drifting athwart
The purple twilight
The swimmer goeth—
Joyously laughing,
With o'er his shoulders,
Aglean in the sunshine,
The trailing branch
With scarlet berries,
Green are the leaves and scarlet the berries,
White are the limbs of the swimmer beyond them,
Blue the deep heart of the still, brooding lake-let,
Pale blue the hills in the haze of September.
The high Alban hills in their silence and beauty,
Purple the depths of the windless heaven,
Curved like a flower o'er the waters of Nemi.

What is called marbled paper is not made in this country. It all comes from Europe, and is made without machinery, in the old fashioned way. It is that beautifully, but irregularly mottled paper which book binders use on the inside of book covers and for the outer fly leaves. Manufacturers of paper boxes and of sample cards also use it, and, altogether, it is imported to the value of half a million dollars a year.

The difficulty of distinguishing certain forms of comatose sleep from actual death has suggested all sorts of ingenious tests, such as holding a looking-glass in front of the nostrils, or forcing a spray of water against the closed eyelids. A still more decisive experiment, however, consists in injecting the pale skin of the upper arm with a strong solution of ammonia. If a spark of life lingers it will betray itself by the appearance of a red spot.

This incident is recalled by the recent death of General Sumpt, of the French army: In 1870, when the war with Prussia broke out, he was a dashing officer in the prime of life and just become engaged to Mlle. Pelletan, a granddaughter of the physician of Napoleon I. After long months of waiting Mlle. Pelletan saw her fiance return covered with glory, but with both his hands amputated at the wrist. He expressed a wish that, owing to his helpless condition, the engagement should be broken off; but the true woman would not listen to such a proposal, saying that she was proud of her disabled lover.

Among the visitors at the white house recently were an old farmer and his two daughters. They were shown through the private parlors by one of the ushers, and then went into the cool and pleasant east room. Soon after the chief doorkeeper had occasion to go into the east room, and he was greatly surprised to see the old farmer stretched out at full length on one of the large sofas, while his daughters sat near by and fanned him to keep the flies away. The old man was dozing. When told he must not make a bedroom of the east room he got up, rather dazed, and remarked that the sofas looked so good he thought they were to rest upon.

Richmond, Me., is the home of a clown goat which is a source of much amusement all along the Kennebec. He is a great pet among the steamboat men and a regular visitor at the wharf when steamers arrive or depart. One day last week Billy's owner missed him, but two days afterward, when the steamer Kennebec arrived, the goat walked calmly down the gang plank dressed in a pair of old trousers, a swallow-tail coat and a stove-pipe hat. He had been to Boston with his friends, the deckhands, and came home with an increased dignity of bearing naturally consequent upon a visit to that learned town. When a lady in the waiting room patted him the goat whipped the veil from her face and swallowed it in a twinkling. Then he went home in his new togs, which he has probably since eaten.

In the town of Warsaw the Jews now number 40 per cent of the population, and the average in all the other towns of Poland is 50 per cent., while in the villages it falls to 7 per cent., and in the rest of the country to nil. Consul Grant says the trades and industries in the city of Warsaw are almost entirely in the hands of the Hebrew population. In the higher branches of commerce the ratio is 16 Jews to 3 Christians, in the lower branches 19 Jews to 2 Christians, and in the agency and brokerage business 43 Jews to 1 Christian. Of the large industrial enterprises of the city 63 per cent. are in the hands of the Jews and only 18 per cent. belong to native Christians. As common workmen and as domestics the proportion is the other way, only 11,000 Jews, or 8 per cent. of the total Jewish population, being so employed, against 43,000 Christians, or 20 per cent. of the total Christian population.

The Problem of Locating One's State Room—Not Sea Sick, Only Willing to Walk Home.

The subjoined letter, which Mr. Frank Gregory, of the BEE job room, received from his wife, now journeying to old world world countries, is given for the benefit of others who contemplate a similar trip, and for the enjoyment of the BEE readers generally:

STEAMER CITY OF PARIS, June 24, 1891, 9:30 a. m.

MY DEAR—We are now just two hours out at sea—After arriving in New York and settling all business matters, money exchange, &c., we came on board the steamer about 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon. We found our state room, which, by the way, is the most difficult thing we have to do, that is to keep track of it, so immense is the steamer. The compartment idea (for safety) in the construction of the ship is not only wonderful but very confusing, as you can not pass from one end of the steamer to the other to find your room. To keep track of the windings and locate the numbers is more confusing than one can realize until they experience it. So far we have lost the combination on the second flight of stairs. The maid always kindly comes to our assistance and says we will learn in a day or two, but I have quite determined to master it the first day. Brownie quite depends upon me, and in every instance I get there just the same. I find plenty are as ignorant as we are, gentlemen passengers as well as ladies.

After we found our state room last night, and had our baggage placed (which, however, was not until 11 o'clock) we unpacked and retired with a feeling constantly that a third party would occupy with us at the last moment, and we were not surprised in the morning, after breakfast, when we went to our room to find a jumbo piece of baggage placed there hailing from San Francisco.

Our feelings can better be imagined than described, especially as we have not set eyes upon the old or young dame—we predict a mother and child, a fat old woman or a spinster, or anything but an agreeable companion.

But I am digressing and intended to give you everything in regular order.

As we left the wharf hundreds of people were standing waving their friends good-bye and we realized how much alone we were among that vast crowd. As soon as we were off we went to the Purser's office to secure steamer chairs which we did with very little difficulty; then to the dining room to the steward to secure tickets for seats at the table. We got first sittings and a very pleasant table. Our table seats were 108 and 109; chairs outside 221 and 309. When this much is done we are settled for the voyage.

The tables were filled with a profusion of flowers. Some placed there by friends of the steamer and many by friends to friends as a parting souvenir. It was a pretty picture, the first meal, when they were all fresh, and the meal and service was all one could desire.

The next thing in order was to find the "postoffice," and there we went and found awaiting me a telegram from Jake and Clara bidding me a god-speed, and a letter from Pearl, a very interesting letter. Everybody thus far has been very kind to us, and with my fun-loving nature you can imagine the fun. "Everything goes, even the cook stoves." The passengers are all on the go, carrying various things—rugs, caps, hoods and scarfs. Well, space and time forbid further comment. I will leave something for the imagination.

Last but not least we have a bride and groom on board from Albany going out for a six months' tour; our best wishes attend them. The proud mother told us the story.

It is 10 o'clock and we have just finished lunch. It has been our good fortune to meet some very pleasant people. We are enjoying it ever so much. Our table is surrounded with very nice people who have quite taken to us, and we were the recipients of one of the finest flower pieces on board. At the lunch table just now Brownie and I were given our choice of roses. I am proudly wearing mine as I write.

Now we are going to prepare for a walk.

* * * I met an old gentleman whose entire family are traveling in Switzerland and he is going to join them. He has been explaining foreign money to me and places of interest.

I am looking forward to Paris with a great deal of anticipation, but the present is very pleasant.

9 A. M. 25th.—Well, we turned in last night at 10:30, having hung out among the last, as we enjoy the air so much. You know how little I enjoy a close room, and to go to our state-room from the promonade deck is like going from our south floor to our store room. We sleep splendidly, with no more thought of fear than you would have in a hotel.

A good many were sick last night, and did not appear this morning, or are eating out on deck to put themselves in shape for what may happen. We are right side up with care as yet; the rest remains.

I am proud to say that I can now find my state room without the slightest trouble, having succeeded in locating it the first day as I was determined to do. We learned yesterday that the number on board, crew included, is 1,500, which appears to be quite a little village.

We have taken our usual morning walk and are now settled down to enjoy the ocean breeze which is delightful.

27th.—Skipped writing the 26th, and will give you an account to-day. It was so very rough and stormy yesterday that I could not write; indoors it was too close and out of doors the wind was too strong.

Brownie was awfully sick the second night after we were out and in the storm yesterday felt a little uncertain all day; so much so, that we had all our meals served on deck and did not appear at the table until this morning at breakfast. They tell us that yesterday was considered one of the worst days they have experienced on the ocean in some time.

I was not sea-sick but I did think of home a good many times, and felt (as Reynolds said about it) if I could have walked I would have gone back, then and there. Brownie didn't care where she was. For a time she was even willing to furnish food for the fishes. Her shoes being securely fastened she still possesses them.

Really, it was dreadful. It rained, the wind blew, and the boat rocked and pitched.

They put up the awnings above and on the sides and yet one was nearly drenched through.

Later we ran into a fog, and they sounded the horn constantly, but fortunately that did not last long. They said the steamer one trip ahead of us had quite an experience with icebergs. I do so hope we may see one. I do not claim to miss an experience. I want all that is in it, and I guess will get it.

Just passed a sailing vessel in full sail.

We have made some very pleasant acquaintances, and everyone has been very kind to us, yet the more we know the more we feel how little we know, and I presume as we go on the more we will find it that way.

The sea air is very heavy and the spray so thick and damp; we are sitting in our gossamers and wrapped up in our blanket. Good-bye until to-morrow.

Well, the next day was a repetition of the one just recorded, the only thing to break the monotony, we met a lovely lady and gentleman from Cincinnati, a friend of Mr. James Semple, and the acquaintance was the brightest spot in our voyage. We also met a gentleman from Detroit, a tock dealer, who has been very kind to us; also a southern gentleman, and one from Minnesota, and a young girl from Philadelphia. We all went down in the evening for a lunch together. Up to that date I had kept perfectly well, but that unseasonable hour lunch quite upset me, and I have had one of my picnics with my stomach, and I know I have your sympathy.

Yesterday, Monday, was such a beastly day about all we did was to chase ourselves around to find a good place and keep out of the rain. We passed two sailing vessels in the afternoon and I do not think Columbus and his men could have made more fuss when they discovered America than the passengers on shipboard, so glad were they to see anything outside of water. Occasionally, too, we see a school of porpoises coming towards the ship.

Instead of going over in six days we are going to be eight days, and the meanest part of it all to pass "Queenstown" in the night, but this is certainly a grand old ship. When she is either pitching or rolling she does it so steadily and gracefully I just admire her, and I think how proud the shipbuilder or architect of her ought to be to sit and watch her mast in the storm, she looks so grand, and almost says, "I defy the elements."

To-day it is quite interesting to see everybody in the writing room or on deck with writing material, as to-night is the night we mail our letters.

I want to say right here that when I get back home I think I will spend every cent I've got just for the sake of handling good old United States money once more. Bother the English money; that's what catches us!

Well, now I think I will leave you until I arrive in London, where we now expect to spend the Fourth of July, when I shall think of you and loved ones at home.

Recorder Baker's Report for the Past Year—The Burned Glass Factory Will Be Rebuilt.

FINDLAY, July 11.—(Special)—The Donnavin murder trial was finished yesterday. After the lawyers on both sides had finished their pleas Judge Johnson charged the jury and sent them out into the jury-room to gree whether Donnavin killed the men in self-defense or not. The jury had not come to an agreement at a late hour last evening.

Going To Retire.

James R. Waite, the well-known actor, will finish his career on the stage the coming season, after a busy life of many years of successful management. He will accept the superintendency of an electric car line at his home at Elkhart, Ind.

Burned.

The 11-year-old son of Mr. Shaw was severely burned in the face on Thursday evening. He was on horseback and stopped along the street where some of his companions were playing with powder. In lighting a fuse the powder flashed up in his face, burning it severely but not seriously.

To Rebuild.

The stockholders of the recently burned Findlay flint glass works have been notified to meet in this city on the 20th inst. to positively decide on rebuilding. The insurance losses have been adjusted satisfactorily. The cars and furnaces were not injured very much, and this will be a great saving to the company in rebuilding.

Recorder's Statistics.

During the past year County Recorder Baker recorded 2,293 deeds, representing a value of $2,608,498 89, a total of 185 leases representing a money value of $27,769.76, 1,521 mortgages securing loans of $1,450,559 79 were recorded. During the same period 1,155 mortgages were released representing $1,100,46 8 77.

Sent to the Farm.

Infirmary Director Morrison left yesterday for the state reformatory at Lancaster, having in charge an incorrigible youth by the name of William Borbesing, who was consigned there by Probate Judge Kerns for his misconduct until he has attained his majority.

Going Into the Combine.

The stock and machinery, buildings, etc., of the Columbia, the oldest, and the Bellaire Goblet, one of the largest, flint houses in the city, was carefully invoiced this week preparatory to going into the great United Globe combine. An offer was made to bring in the balance of the flint houses, but the proprietors declined to go in. It is thought the factories will be run about the same the coming season, retaining the old officers and men.

Some fancy the charms of the lily-white maid,
Of etherial form and languishing eye,
Who faints in the sunshine and droops in the shade,
And is always "just ready to die."

But give me the girl of the sunshiny face,
The blood in whose veins courses healthy and free,
With the vigor of youth in her movements of grace,
Oh, that is the maiden for me!

She is the girl to "tie to" for life. The sickly, complaining woman may be an object of love and pity, but she ceases to be a "thing of beauty" worn down by female weakness and disorders, subject to hysteria and a martyr to bear-down pains. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a sure cure for these distressing complaints, and will transform the feeble, drooping sufferer into a healthy, happy, blooming woman. Guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or money paid for it refunded.

A TRIBUTE OF ESTEEM

Paid by Citizens of Toledo to Mr. J. T. McDonnell

On the Event of His Departure to Ireland—Presentation and Address Delivered to Him at St. Patrick's Institute Last Evening.

Last evening a large assemblage, including the members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, Catholic Knights of America, and citizens generally, met at St. Patrick's Institute for the purpose of paying a tribute of esteem and respect to Mr. T. J. McDonnell on the eve of his departure for a trip to Europe. Sunday next Mr. and Mrs. McDonnell and family will leave for an extended tour through Ireland and other points of Europe.

Rev. Father Hannin called the meeting to order, and when Mr. McDonnell arrived on the scene, Mr. P. S. Garraghan stepped to the front and delivered the following address:

To the Hon. T. J. McDonnell:

Having learned that you are about to cross the Atlantic with your wife and family to pay a visit to the land of your ancestors—that little gem beyond the sea—therefore, we, the citizens of Toledo, take this opportunity of showing to you on the eve of your departure the high esteem and appreciation in which you are held by all classes of the citizens of this great and growing city. It has been almost a quarter of a century since you first appeared among us, as a young and promising citizen and professional man, and the promises that you gave evidence of many years ago when you first came among us have been more than realized as a noble citizen, true friend, kind neighbor and loving husband and parent.

During these many years you have endeared yourself to all classes of our people by the noble examples that you have given them, as a citizen, attorney, Catholic and lover of the cause in which the Irish nation has been engaged for many centuries.

We recognize in you a true and patriotic citizen of this glorious country and at the same time one who has responded ably, loyally and sympathetically when the land of your ancestors asked for assistance from the people of this country in her struggles for justice.

Your resources and talents have on hundreds of occasions been given freely, generously, lovingly and patriotically towards the comfort, assistance and betterment of the people of Ireland.

As a Catholic, you have done everything in your power to assist the advance of Christianity. No trouble, no labor nor no inconvenience has been too great for you to encounter when your services were required to assist your church or aid the people of down trodden Ireland.

At all times and on all occasions you have taken an active and forward part in the welfare of society, country, Catholicity and the advancement of the people both at home and abroad.

We might go on almost indefinitely and still not exhaust the enumeration of your noble qualities as a citizen, professional man and true friend of the land that you are impatiently waiting to place your feet upon, and gaze on its beautiful scenery with your own eyes.

To say more would be like attempting to brighten the rays of the midday sun or with the painter's brush add greater beauty to the color of the lily.

We all unite in wishing you and your estimable wife and family a happy and pleasant journey through the land of O'Connell, Emmett and Grattan, and we hope and know that you will meet with that recognition and courtesy that your services to the people of that nation entitle you to. And in order to show a small mark of our appreciation, love and gratitude towards you, permit me on behalf of this committee and the citizens of Toledo to present to you this small token of our regard, esteem and affection to carry with you through the lovely dales and valleys of that beautiful and bountiful little island that has been the birthplace of so many noble and patriotic men and women who to-day are populating the whole world with children who are worthy of such noble parents. Carry this small memento with you, and every time you look upon it you will remember that though small in value it represents the warmest outpourings of the esteem, regard and high appreciation of all classes of citizens of this progressive city.

Again, we wish you and your wife and family a happy, happy journey and visit to the sweetest and dearest land on earth and a safe return to your native country where a welcome as generous as the gratitude and love that now go out to you will await you.

Signed by committee,

REV. E. HANNIN,
Pastor St. Patrick's church.
REV. P. MCCARTHY,
Pastor Immaculate Conception church.
JOHN CAVANAUGH,
P. S. GARRIGAN,
PETER F. WHALEN,
PATRICK HANNAHAN,
FRANK GORMAN,
M. J. MALONE.

At the conclusion of the address Mr. Garraghan presented Mr. McDonnell with a handsome ebony gold-headed cane.

Mr. McDonnell was evidently affected, and spoke feelingly of the kindness and generosity of his fellow-townsmen. He denied that his services had been such as to entitle him to this token of regard and esteem. He had simply tried to perform his duty as a citizen, and had done so to the best of his ability. He spoke feelingly of the relations that existed between the pastor and the people of St. Patrick's parish and himself, and trusted that in the future as in the past he would be always found among those who were willing and ready to advance the interests of the parish and of the city. In conclusion he begged that the representatives of the press present be requested not to publish the proceedings. He had come to the hall only on a guarantee from the committee who waited on him that it was a private affair, but he noticed that reporters were present and were penciling away as usual. He seriously objected to any publication of the address or of the proceedings.

Mr. J. P. Gahan said that the committee had no authority to give any such guarantee, and he for one was not in favor of suppressing the proceedings.

Rev. Father Hannin followed in a similar strain. He said that no secret meeting had ever been held in that hall, and he did not propose that one should be held now. The press was represented, and he trusted full reports would be given.

Mr. McDonnell again took the stage and insisted as a matter of right to himself that nothing be said about it in the papers. He appealed to the reporters present.

Councilman John Cavanaugh, Alderman P. H. Degnan and others spoke on the subject, and it was finally decided that the address be printed, Mr. McDonnell still protesting.

Rev. Father McCarthy, of the Immaculate Conception parish, was called upon and delivered a touching tribute to the virtues of Mr. McDonnell. He spoke of him as a lawyer and a citizen in words of high esteem, and concluded by wishing Mr. McDonnell and his family bon voyage and a hearty God-speed. At the conclusion of the exercises cigars were passed around and everyone present shook hands with Mr. McDonnell.

THAT AWFUL DISEASE.

PETERSBURG, IND., Aug. 8, 1890.

Dr. Bergen, City:

DEAR SIR—I have been a victim to that awful disease known as asthma, all my life, and very often I would be down with it—not able to be out of the house—and have tried everything I could hear of, but they never did me much if any good. I was finally persuaded to try your Cure. So, after taking a few bottles of it, I was entirely free from asthma and have not had any since and don't feel that I ever will. I always keep a bottle on hand, but don't think I will ever have occasion to use it. I can carefully recommend it to all sufferers of asthma. Believe me your true friend.

ROSEBUD AND ROSE.

'Mid a garden of roses that trembling shook
Their incense in the air,
That raised to each comer a fond, shy look,
I walked with two women fair.

And one was a beautiful rose full-blown.
A queenly woman she:
The other a slender maid scarce grown,
A dream of the rose to be.

To the glorious, queenly woman I gave
A full-blown, exquisite rose,
But for the maiden sweetly grave
A shy rosebud I chose:

She smiled, but on the roses rare
She turned a longing eye;
The woman set the rose in her hair,
But she looked on the bud with a sigh.
—Henry Collins, in July Lippincott's.

TO A CAGED BIRD.

"Sweet, sweet, sweet!"
Never but that one word,
Never another I've heard,
As you call from your cage, O Bird!

"Sweet, sweet, sweet!"
Who is so sweet now, pray,
That you call her the livelong day,
And ever the self-same way?

"Sweet, sweet, sweet!"
I hear it now loud and now low,
O Bird, will she ever know,
Your love, that you love her so?

"Sweet, sweet, sweet!"
You call but she never replies,
Does her own soft cry arise,
"Sweet, sweet!" under alien skies?

"Sweet, sweet, sweet!"
How know you she lives at all?
How know you but 'neath a pall
Of dead leaves she lies deaf to your call!

"Sweet, sweet, sweet!"
Across the cold barriers Fate
Interposes where Love long must wait—
"Sweet, sweet!" cries each heart to its mate!
—Boston Globe.

The question of what shall be done to secure good domestic service is one that is always under discussion in home circles, and of late one hears it from the rostrum, and reads of it in the papers. It is even made the subject of ponderous articles in the leading magazines. Not long since a daily paper in Chicago devoted nearly a column of editorial space to discussing, "What shall we do for house-girls?" and ended by gravely advising the substitution of male help for female help, not only in the kitchen but for chamber work. But this would add greatly to the cost of housekeeping, a consideration most housekeepers have to keep constantly in mind, and it is neither pleasant nor desirable to have men servants in those places. They are employed, it is true, in some countries; they are good cooks, if they are cooks at all; they do excellent laundry work; are neat and serviceable at chamber work. But American housekeepers will never, we believe, take kindly to this innovation on American customs.

Mrs. Helen Campbell writes on this question in the Chautauquan. From personal talks with a large number of girls who work out, she has gathered the following, as their chief objections to following that occupation for a livelihood:

1. That mistresses do not know what a day's work means, and will seldom, if ever, guarantee any payment for over time or give any portion of the day absolutely free to the worker, especially in the position of child's nurse.

2. That a comfortably warm and decently furnished room with separate beds if two must occupy it, is almost entirely unknown, and decent appointments for meals equally so.

3. That even where the servant is willing to take less wages, the mistress is seldom willing to have the heaviest work arranged for; this meaning carrying coal up many flights of stairs, scrubbing pavements, washing, etc.

4. That often a livery is required thus setting the servant apart and forcing her to take a social position which most regard as degrading.

5. That there is seldom any place but the kitchen for receiving visitors nor any securing from espionage, whether they are male or female.

6. The servant is often treated by the mistress as if her place and work were contemptible and children are allowed to take the same attitude.

There is no one of these counts which ought to hold good if the housekeeper be just and sensible, but such complaints are too often heard for it to be assumed that there is no real ground for making them. The first of these charges is one that has much to do with making housework distasteful to really capable girls. If housekeepers had only the experience of men as to the regulation of hours of work they would have a quicker apprehension of the importance of this. Work should have its limit not only as to amount but as to time. There should be the evening, the afternoon, the day, set apart, as a girl's very own, in which she can lay the implements of housework aside as another girl lays down her needle in the shop, or stops her machine in the factory. It should be her time, not by favor, but by right. No exigency of the housekeeper should be allowed to infringe upon it.

All the other complaints here enumerated by Mrs. Campbell are more easy of adjustment, but this most important one of all can also be satisfactorily settled. The real reason it is not must be acknowledged to be because the employers of girls are not sufficiently business women to see that the arrangement is just and equitable.

A housegirl should have, somewhere in every week, time that belongs to herself as absolutely as though she was not working for a weekly wage, and that time should not be one day this week and another the next week, as happens to suit her employer's convenience. It should be stated on her employment what time would be her own, and that time should never be taken from her. She should be provided with a room in every respect as decent and wholesome as that her employer occupies, though it need not be either luxuriant or artistic in its arrangement. If she be the self-respecting, intelligent girl who can appreciate proper treatment, she will make her own room homelike. She should not be required to do work beyond her strength, nor be worked beyond her strength. As for a livery, it is not required in many American homes, and few sensible girls object to it—when it is becoming. The girl who knows how to select her friends properly and to entertain them becomingly, should have, at proper times, a proper place in which to receive them. An employer who will treat a girl contemptuously, or allow the children to do so, is not a lady, and we are not thinking of that kind. The true lady is dignified everywhere, and never shows contempt for any one.

Housework is the safest, most healthy and best remunerated work that a girl not specifically educated to do something else can engage in. It seems as though it can be easily made the most desirable work. Why, then, is the problem of domestic service so unsettled and unsettling?

EMBROIDERY.

The flowers are so beautiful this year—the pansies, the forget-me-nots, lilies and monthly roses, and only too soon the autumn flowers will be here. Shall we employ our fingers to reproduce them to embellish the winter homes? With brush or needle the pictures are equally attractive.

The stitch known as Kensington can be employed for filled work, with fine chenilles or for filling silks, a single thread drawn through a coarse, round-eyed needle (the almond eyed-needle frays the material). Take the flowers with you in selecting the silks, so the colors will be true to nature.

There are few now who cannot draw, but for those who cannot here are instructions: Take a flower, pull it to pieces, lay each piece separately—the petals, sepals, leaves and stems—upon the paper; outline with pencil, cut them out; select a perfect growing plant, place it before you and put together your patterns according to the model thus furnished you from nature. A novice will soon learn the "Art of Drawing" and practice it with delight, training the eye and brain to produce lovely patterns from the growing plants in less time than a master could teach you.

Practical experience leaves a stronger impression than watching others. If you really love nature, your success is assured.

Always commence working from the center of the flower or leaf, following nature strictly according to the views or partitions, blending the colors one with another until you produce the effect of the original, working the stamens and pistil last, and placing occasional shading stitches, as an artist retouches with his brush.

Now are the pleasant gatherings on the veranda. When the mothers are embroidering the initials or monograms on the household linen, and the younger eyes can work the tinted flowers.

The following extract is from John Taylor's Poem on the Needle:

And for my country's quiet, I should like
That womankind should use no other pike.
It will increase their peace, enlarge their store,
To use their tongues less, and their needles more.
The needle's sharpness profit yields and pleasure,
But sharpness of the tongue bites out of measure.

A FAIR YOUNG REBEL.

A constant and critical reader of the Household, who would be welcomed if she came "pen in hand" to make her visit, sends us a clipping of which she says:

"I took this from a newspaper not less than ten years ago. It was written of a lady then the wife of a judge of criminal court, Lake county, Colorado. The maiden name of the lady is not stated, but it is evident she was in girlhood a handsome and talented young rebel."

Few persons know that in the city of Leadville, Col., there lives one of the most celebrated women of her day. Men at fashionable watering places raved over her beauty and varied accomplishments. President Buchanan is credited with saying: "The only woman I ever loved well enough to marry. God bless her." And that little man of intellect, Alexander H. Stephens: "The most beautiful, accomplished and thoroughly good woman I ever knew. Worth her weight in diamonds." Colonel Dan McCook, the evening before he was killed in battle, said to a comrade: "I feel sad to-night; why, I cannot tell. Perhaps it is my last night on earth. I was thinking of my old college days in Alabama, and the most attractive woman I ever met. Well, it is all past, we are both married, but I wish she may never know a sorrow." General Pat. Cleburne, having a premonition of his death, asked this lady to write his obituary if he should fall in battle the next day. The battle of Franklin and Cleburne's death have passed to history. The touching little poem that came out in the Memphis Avalanche by this lady, and was so extensively copied in southern papers, is still remembered:

Brave Cleburne is sleeping
Where night dews are weeping
And pale leaves are falling
Like gift gems around;
Where sad winds are sighing
And sweet flowers dying
To mingle their breath
With the ashes they love, &c.

In 1860 the Prince of Wales and suite were in St. Louis. A lovely young girl passed Barnum's hotel. "See! Look, my lord!" the prince exclaimed, addressing Lord Lyons, "isn't she exquisite?"

For months touching little poems were published in the Louisville Journal, and highly praised by its editor, George D. Prentice, who spoke of her as a remarkable woman, full of genius. Parepa Rosa heard her voice and asked her to sing. The great prima donna threw up her hands in ecstasy, and exclaimed: "Madam, what a shame for pride to keep that voice from the world!"

This wonderful woman, with so many gifts, has for years lived in quiet retirement, forgetting and almost forgotten by the world that once did her so much homage, in a perfect bower of beauty (her cottage), adorned by lovely paintings and sculpture from her own hands and from European masters.

One painting by Titian, an heirloom from her husband's family, hangs on the wall and is beyond value. Many etchings, taken from southern Utah, lie around. She has traveled for a year in Utah, and relates many interesting anecdotes of the Mormons. Her husband is one of the most noted lawyers on the western coast—a men of great erudition.

FOR A GIRL'S SUMMER TRUNK.

If you wear a fluffy bang, you want your alcohol lamp.

If you wear laced shoes, you want a dozen pairs of shoe-strings.

If you varnish or polish your shoes, you want a new bottle of blacking.

If you are inclined to sunburn, you want a pot of strawberry cream or some cold cream.

If you are fond of reading, you want your favorite books.

If you ever use pins, you want a block of black ones and a paper of white ones.

If you are a good girl and mend your clothes, you want some spools of thread, your needles, your thimble and some buttons.

If you make yourself sweet with infant-powder and a puff, you want a sealed package of powder.

If you use boom'g pins to fasten on your hat, you want a dozen of them.

If you are inclined to be ill-tempered and petulant, you want unlimited patience.

If you are inclined to be careless and inconsiderate, you want a very large package of energy and friendliness.

And if you are lacking in politeness, then you want to remember that surely she who claims to be a Christian, must, before everything else, be gentle in her manners.—Ladies' Home Journal.

This neat blouse is serviceable not only as part of a tennis costume but for morning wear in the country. It is so plain that it is one of the garments easily made at home, and the cost of material is very trifling. Linen lawn is good material; cambric is equally serviceable. In fact, any wash goods will make a neat blouse in this pattern.

GRANDMA.

Grandma says she is pretty well, "Thanks be to the "Heavenly Father." "Only," she adds with a sigh, "I'm not strong; not able to do anything."

No, Grandma can not wash, or iron, or scrub, or bake huge batches of beautiful bread, as in days gone by. And as for giving a room a good sweeping that would be quite out of the question. "Her arm's young strength is gone."

But who, from Monday morning until Saturday night, goes about doing good as incessantly as does our Grandma?

It is she who, on washday morning, bids the wigorous young mother "be off to your washing and let me that's no good do these dishes." It is she who has time to make the nice clear starch and blue the rinse water just right; she who lures the wee toddler from the hot and unsafe kitchen and shows it how to build a wonderful play house out in the shade of the old apple tree; and who says, "I'll get them some excuse a dinner and do you finish the wash before the burning afternoon." And she it is who knows how to make that "excuse of a dinner" a real treat.

It was Grandma who noticed when the hired man felt badly at noon and made haste to prepare for him the cool refreshing drink of lemonade.

When five-year-old comes shouting in "papa's 'goin to town, I can go 'long if I'm ready quick!" It is Grandma who has time to change the wee garments, and wash the sunburnt face, and make the little chubby hands look decent.

When papa and mamma were out in that great rain and came home all tired, splashed and muddy, it was Grandma again who carefully put away to dry each mud-stained garment, and afterward had time to clean them all up so thoroughly.

When her busy daughter has moulded the snowy loaves of bread into the pans, it is Grandma who, knitting in hand, comes leisurely into the kitchen, and in her pleasant way, says:

"Now the rest is my work. Nothing hard about taking care of the bread while it rises and bakes."

"But, mother, the kitchen is hot!"

"Just what I like, child, and what you're tired of. Now go and sew."

And the tired, warm-blooded worker is so glad to sit and sew in the cool sitting room, and the dear old lady coddles the bread as though it were a baby. And presently it is done, and there are no burnt spots on it, and no dyspeptic looking white spots at the ends of the loaves. And the mother is rested, and grandma is so happy to think she has done a little something.

And it is grandma, who, on mother's busy days, has time to make a shortcake, a simple berry pudding, or an apple cobbler as a treat for the children, because they "were good." No one but grandma has seen anything of the "goodness," but she has second sight, you know.

Perhaps that is why, when any one is telling of some especial bit of wickedness that an acquaintance has been guilty of, she can always match the story by relating some shining good quality possessed by that same sinner. Then she will say, so gently: "There's so much good in bad people, and so much bad in good people, that only the Heavenly Father knows where to draw the line."

True enough, grandma's working days are past. Therefore she has time to nurse the sick, to soothe the fretful, to rest and help the weary, to cheer the despondent, to rejoice with all who rejoice, and mourn with all who mourn.

When, at last, all grandma's earthly days are numbered she thinks her work will keep on doing itself in this world. For how can we who have known her, forget her? And remembering her, how can we fail to be a little more patient, a little more generous, and a little braver, more honest and true?

Upper Sandusky. AUNTIE TOILER.

SCRAP BASKET.

The following advice is given by the Ladies' Home Journal relative to that event, the installation of the heretofore baby in the first kilts that made him the Boy:

Kilts may be of white, blue or brown cheviot, cloth or flannel, fashioned into a side-plaited skirt and round, three-piece jacket, having coat sleeves and fastening with one button. The skirt is sewn to an underwaist, and a blouse is worn of white nainsook, cambric, serge, cashmere or China silk, with broad cuffs and collar turned over on the cloth jacket. Kilt skirts and sailor blouses of flannel are the most comfortable of play dresses. Fancy sailor caps, of blue cloth or white serge, are worn; also, white straw sailor's. Cloth coats of checked or striped goods have a plaited skirt, full sleeves and round waist, with a deep, rolling collar. Reefer or pilot jackets of blue, trimmed with gilt buttons, are of great favor with small chaps. Keep them in black hose with all dresses.

Think nought a trifle, though it small appear:
Small sands the mountain, moments make the year,
And trifles life.

How many people know that among the Bedouin Arabs respect for woman is so great that at her command the cimeter uplifted to strike must fall harmless. A murderer or a thief cannot be touched if he is under the protection of a woman, and the right of their power to pardon is recognized so completely that in some tribes, where the women never appear before the men and have their own separate tents, the thief who is being pursued can save himself by getting close to the tent and calling out, "I am under the protection of the harem!" As this is very loudly said, the women hear it, and they call out together, "Fly from him!" And that man, even if he has been condemned to death by the prince himself, is pardoned at once and can go at large. And yet we think we are civilized.

Perhaps the latest device in millinery is the roll of velvet around the crown with full rosette or ball of lace at one side, from the center of which rises an aigrette. This is the style of trimming oftenest accorded to the white felt sailors that are a recent introduction. The felt is fine, and so white that it looks cooler than straw. These felt hats promise to be very popular at the summer resorts and in the country.

Winter is well forgotten, but Spring and Summer for toil,
Go, turn thy feet to the fields for birth of the corn and oil!
Leave thy wreck of the Future—thy grave of a dead delight,
Lift hard hands to the plow, and gird strong loins for the fight
Dear is the Peace after Pain, and balm for the flint-worn feet,
Great peace cometh of Labor—out of the Strong the Sweet.

If you would see a woman or a child graceful, beautiful, and charming, you must find one that is loved. The child that dreads to be corrected or criticised for every word or movement never has a manner of elegance or an expression of charm. Fill your child's soul with an ideal of good manners, of benevolence and beauty; teach it abstractly to dislike vulgarity, selfishness, rudeness, and to feel that you love and admire it, and expect of it charming manners, and the work is accomplished.

It is impossible for a slave to have any style. If you would have your child dignified you must treat it with dignity.

They sat and watched in idle mood
The gleam and shade of lake and wood,—
The beach, the keen light's smote,
The white sail of a boat,—
Swan flocks of lilies shoreward lying,
In sweetness, not in music, dying,—
Hardhack, and virgin's bower,
And white-spiked clethra flower.

Day, panting with heat, and laden with a thousand cares, toils onward like a beast of burden; but night, calm, silent, holy night, is a ministering angel that cools with its dewy breath the toil-heated brow.

The cows are standing mid-leg deep in the pool, their tails going with rhythmical regularity, looking as we often want to feel, vacant of thought, which chases us like lo's gad-fly, meekly unquestioning, accepting life as a finality. For the lower creatures are limited but absolute affirmations, while man is an infinite question.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

Dr. Walker, editor of the Free Church of Scottland Monthly, has been visiting this country and giving his readers at home his views on what he saw. His impressions, after visiting Smith college, are given as follows:

What was told me nearly took my breath away. On asking who were admitted to it, I was informed that a girl could be received only on her being able to show that she had "graduated" at one or other of certain specified high schools, or on her passing a prescribed examination. On inquiring further what she was required to possess, I was told that she must be able to read two or three books of the Æneid, one book of the Iliad, and a book or two of Euclid. "What!" I exclaimed, "is all that demanded for entrance?" "Yes," was the reply. "And how long are they expected to remain after joining?" "Four years," was the answer. "But," said I, quite aghast at the contemplation of so much learning, "does not all this culture tend to create a caste in society? Does any ordinary man venture to speak to young ladies so accomplished? How does it all affect their prospects in life?" "Well," said the professer, "they are very much in demand."

I had the pleasure afterwards of making the acquaintance of a lady who had come out first at the "commencement" in Smith (which means, I may say, not the commencement of the session, but the close of it), and I am bound to confess that she showed no bumptiousness, but seemed as fitted for ordinary life as if she had never passed through that extraordinary mill. Perhaps I may be excused if I add that I found the women of America, as a rule, more interesting than the men. The latter get to be absorbed in business, and do not read very much. The former appear to have more time at their disposal, and become better acquainted with the literature of their country and of ours. Whether it is owing to this or not, I cannot say, but the respect paid to women in the Union is certainly very great.

THEY GANG THEIR AIN GAIT.

Something that is very much neglected nowadays among young women is the art of walking well. Most people reach their desired destination at the cost of a great deal of scrambling, of jerking shoulders, of angular elbows working like the vans of a windmill, of arms labouring like oars, swinging hips, head nodding as a cow's does when she walks, the gown flung up behind at every movement of the heels, the knees bent, and the feet lifted with the stiffness of a jumping jack pulled by a string; and, provided they reach the point aimed for, a goodly proportion of their number think no more about it.

Others, again, walk with a flexibility (that is to say, with the want of it) of a peripatetic ramrod, the head, the back, the legs, the feet—all moving together with a simultaneous and unjointed precision that gives them the air of automata playing at life, and the imperturbable restraint no more like the dignity or composure desired than an angle is like the line of beauty.

There are others, still, who walk with a mince and a wriggle which are painful to see, which make one think of a hitching canker-worm, and welcome heartily the sight of the no less reprehensible Amazon who stalks onward without measuring her steps, hit or miss, so that she gets over the ground, or the loose-jointed individual who rattles along as if every bone in her body were hung on a wire, like those of the skeleton in a physician's closet.

There, too, is the tripping young thing at whose figure you never glance without thinking of the topical song, "One, two, three, balance like me;" and among all the others in the great procession there are those, also, who walk with such pains and effort, as if the proper work and function of each muscle and member were to be remembered first—that you half fancy they may have had the same lesson at the feet of the dancing man that he gave good Peter in the "Bab Ballads:"

"'Come, walk like this,' the dancer said;
'Stick out your toes, stick in your head;
Stalk on with quick galvanic tread,
Your fingers thus extend—
The attitude's considered quaint.'"

There are very few who walk with the easy equable grace that would seem to proceed from an easy and equable mind, neither hurrying impetuously and fitfully and with pronounced exertion and evident eager desire to reach some point, or with the effort to condone delay, nor dawdling along as if they had not an object in mind and nothing were of any consequence.

Decent mental reserves, it is thus to be noted, can be maintained almost as much in the gait as in the conversation; and it is to be doubted if we have the right to obtrude our business and worries and ennuies upon the public observation, as we do by any other than a calm and even motion, whether the nation be swift or slow. Of course one may walk as rapidly as necessary, or as loiterly as inclination prompts, but equally, of course, without the personal betrayal of the impatient nervous motion of haste or the aimless one of irresolution.—Harper's Bazar.

WANTED, A WIFE.

The following advertisement appeared recently in a Japanese newspaper, and suggests that the land of the Mikado may be a good place for a matrimonial agency; also, that the ideal she of one man, at least, has her distinct limitations:

"Wanted, a wife. If she is pretty, she need not be clever. If she is rich, she need not be pretty. If she is clever she need not be perfect in form (provided always, that she be not conceited). Her station in life is no object; neither is the remoteness of her place of abode, whether in country or town. She ought to be in the neighborhood of twenty years of age, more or less. The would-be bridegroom is an artist of Osaka, occupying a medium position in society. Ladies desiring a union are requested to attend at the office of the Osaka Mainichi Saimbu n by the 25th instant, where full particulars will be given."

CHAT.

Only one side of the housekeeper's problem is touched upon in this department to-day. We shall be glad to publish other views, and criticisms upon our own. Our readers talk a great deal upon this question, and these columns are open for an interchange of their ideas.

The ideal American home is one where love rules, and where the members of the household bear one another's burdens. The happiest of our homes are those where three generations gather about one hearthstone. The presence of the aged is a real benediction. Our contributor who talks of Grandma to-day realizes this. It is no ideal picture she gives us, but a beautiful view of a lovely, everyday life. God bless the grandmas in our homes, and spare them to us as long as may be.

Elizabeth Fink always comes with practical ideas. In the name of the Householders she is given the hearty welcome which is always waiting for her.

Do you pickle water melons? One of our contributors promises a recipe for water melon pickles which the writer of these lines can guarantee are delicious. Communications for this page should be addressed, Household Department, Bee Office, Toledo, Ohio.

KITCHEN CONFERENCE.

The soup kettle should be a porcelain or granite-lined iron kettle with a close cover, because the juices of the meat, being acid, will act upon a metallic kettle, thereby giving the soup an inky, bitter taste. A close cover will keep in the steam and prevent evaporation.

FRIED CHICKENS—Take a pair of young chickens, clean, and cut them the same as for fricasse; then wash and dry them; season with salt and pepper. Heat in a pan equal portions of butter and lard; dredge a little flour over them, and fry slowly a nice brown on both sides; then take them up; put a little flour in the pan, pour in some boiling water, sufficient to make it of a proper thickness; let it simmer a short time; add salt and pepper to taste. Pour it over the chickens, and serve hot.

A good plan for keeping butter cool and sweet in summer is to fill a box with sand to within an inch or two of the top, sink the butter jars in the sand, then thoroughly wet the sand with cold water. Cover the box air tight. The box may be kept in the kitchen.

PIGEONS—Pigeons may be broiled or roasted like chickens. They will cook in three-quarters of an hour. Make a gravy of the giblets; season with salt and pepper, and thicken with a little flour and butter.

A PICNIC DAINTY.—What is more delicious for a picnic bread than daintily cut tongue sandwiches arranged in tiny rolls, made (as they must be if rolled) of the sweetest and tenderest of home-made bread? You cannot roll baker's bread, cut it as you may; it is too dry and breaks into crumbs in the process. Spread the tongue on the bread cut into thin slices, with a touch of tartare sauce if you wish.

Vanilla sugar is specially recommended as being stronger and better than the ordinary flavoring extracts, and can be prepared in various ways. Take one pound of lump sugar and one ounce of Mexican vanilla beans; cut the beans in bits and pound in a mortar with sugar till as fine as flour. Sift through a fine strainer, pound the remainder again, and sift till all is fine.

MARSHALL'S HOOF CURE

cures sand and quarter cracks, split hoofs, sore and contracted feet, corns and all hoof troubles. Stops cracking, shelling and scaling hoofs. Softens and toughens brittle hoofs. It is better than soaking with oil, meal, etc. Should be used on all horses standing on hard floors or driven on hard roads. It also cures scratches, tetter, galls of all kinds, bruises, etc.
TOLEDO, O., April 6, 1891.
I had a horse in my stables that had hoofs so brittle that it was impossible to keep a shoe on his feet. I have used one can of Marshall's Hoof Cure on his hoofs and the horse has been shod for four weeks and the shoes stay on all right. I consider it the best hoof cure I have ever used.

MARKETS.

The market quotations in the BEE are compiled from United Press special dispatches and from reports received by the Toledo Produce Exchange, and specially arranged by Mr. Deuson B. Smith, secretary of the Exchange.

OFFICE OF THE TOLEDO BEE, TOLEDO, O., July 11,

London wheat and corn markets very quiet. Liverpool wheat firm, at yesterday's advance; corn firm.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 280,432 bu compared with 182,688 bu on the same day last year.

The receipts of wheat on that day at seven principal western points are 103,744 bu in excess of the corresponding Saturday in 1890.

The receipts of wheat for the week at eight principal western points exceed those of the corresponding week in 1890, 398,000 bu. Corn is 602,000 bu less and oats 406,000 bu less.

The following is an extract from a letter from a very intelligent gentleman in Central Illinois, who has been at the head of a large business with farmers for thirty years: "Although but little threshing is being done, wheat and hay are good. Corn don't look very good but there is plenty of time left for corn. Oats are not a good crop. The wheat situation is curious. Baltimore has sold six millions to be exported by September 1st, and farmers will hold all they can. I am inclined to think a good deal will be held. In this vicinity the bankers are advising farmers to stock their wheat, agreeing to carry them. This feature may assume more general importance than is usually expected. Baltimore dealers have men out along the lines of road buying all they can get.

English markets as reported herein, are steady to firm, but dull. German Emperor occupies the attention. The export clearances yesterday from four Atlantic ports were 20,606 bushels of wheat and only fair in flour.

The New York bank statement herein is considered an unfavorable one.

Heavy rain is reported to-day at Sioux City. At Omaha weather clear and hot.

Government report seems to have but little effect at Chicago or New York.

The Government Crop Report.

There is not sufficient change in the crop conditions to cut much figure in the aggregate result. We think the threshings we have heard of since July 1 indicate a better yield than Col. Dodge's reports of short heads would seem to justify. The crop of spring wheat is by no means secured, but if present promises are realized we can safely count upon an average yield of 16 bu winter and spring wheat on 39,000,000 acres. That means a crop of 525,000,000 bu, or about 100,000,000 bu in excess of 1890. We think the movement of wheat from the crop of 1890 justifies our estimate of 425,000,000. Of course the spring wheat yield is yet guess work.

The World's Supply.

New York and Cincinnati papers have commenced guessing on the world's supply of wheat. It is possible to make a close guess, but it is yet mere speculation. Actual results may vary present expectations by 50,000,000 bu, and it is therefore too early to make profitable estimates.

There has been but little disturbance or change in the wheat markets of this country to-day. The items printed herein comprise about all the news, and it is of but little use either way. New York closed ⅛c up, and Chicago also closed a fraction up.

Corn has been fairly maintained. It closed ¼c to ⅜c up in New York, and ¼c higher in Chicago.

In Toledo business has been less active, but wheat futures have been firm all day. Prices will average and have closed a shade better, but the day has been an uneventful one. On the call August wheat sold at 89⅝c and December at 91⅞c. After the call July sold at 92c to 92¼c and closed at 92¼c up. August sold at 89⅝c to 90¼c and closed at 90c, a gain of ⅛c. December sold at 92⅜c and closed at 92c. First half of July sold at 95c to 94⅝c. First half of August sold at 90⅝c. After change August sold at 89⅝c.

Cash wheat was much more active. We have 106 cars of new wheat on the way, and all but two cars are No. 2. No. 2 soft sold off ¼c at the opening at 94⅜c recovered to 95 and 93¾c to arrive. Old sold at 99c. Closing 95c. No. 3 soft about 91⅛ to 92c. No. 2 white sold at $1.00. Corn—No. 2 at 61⅜c; No. 2 yellow, 63c; No. 2 oats, 42c; August 29½; September, 28⅝. Rye—No. 2 for August at 65c; July, 66½c. Clover seed, $4.30, October, $4.40.

A Famous College Town.

One of the prettiest and healthiest of the small towns of Ohio is Granville. As an educational center Granville is unsurpassed, as it has three large educational institutions within its borders, aggregating 850 students. Denison university is probably the best known and bears a high reputation for the thoroughness of its course of study. Granville academy not only prepares a student for the university, but also furnishes a complete academic course, and gives diplomas to graduates. Shephardson college is a high-class institution for higher education of young ladies. Equipped with new buildings with complete appointments, the college is in an exceedingly prosperous condition. All the above colleges are under the management of D. B. Purinton, LL. D., and are unsectarian although owned by the Baptist church.

"Hunger is the Best Sauce."

As a rule a person who has a good appetite has good health. But how many there are who enjoy nothing they eat, and sit down to meals only as an unpleasant duty. Nature's antidotes for this condition are so happily combined in Hood's Sarsaparilla that it soon restores good digestion, creates an appetite, and renovates and vitalizes the blood so that the beneficial effect of good food is imparted to the whole body. Truly, hunger is the best sauce, and Hood's Sarsaparilla induces hunger.

Among the Amateurs.

The Athletics have a good infield.

Schmul, of the Athletics, is a good first base man.

Speranzas v Foxes at Presque Isle, Sunday, at 10:30 a. m.

Sturm and Schaefer have been released by the Speranzas, jr.

Speranzas v Foxes at Presque Isle, Sunday July 12, at 10:30 a. m.

The Pathfinders and Athletics cross bats, Sunday, July 12, on Brickyard grounds.

We, the Speranzas, jr, will play the Starrs, jr, for any amount. Manager Speranzas, jr.

The Emmets accept the challenge of the Summits for to-morrow on the South street grounds.

The Speranzas claim championship under 17 years, having played 15 games and lost but one.

Starrs and Auburndales at Presque Isle Sunday, July 12, for $25 a side. Watch for a great game.

One of the most exciting games will be played Sunday, July 12 at Presque Isle, between Speranzas and Foxes.

If the Speranzas do not wish to play the Ivys at the Auburndales' grounds, they do not need to play them at all.

Everybody visit the grand game of baseball to be played between Speranzas and Foxes. An exciting game is expected.

The Rodgers are glad that the Auburndales accepted our challenge and will play them on their grounds. Manager Rodgers B B C.

The Early Birds claim the game of the Young Sunflowers because they did not show up, by the score of 9 to 0. Frank Hickey, manager.

The ball players want to know who Eddie Sales is! If it is Connie Wilie don't put his name in the paper again. (By a ball player.)

The Standards would like to play any club in the city under 15 years on the Wabash grounds Sunday, July 19, at 1:30 p m sharp. T McGuire, captain.

The Golden Coins defeated the Speranza Juniors by a score of 17 to 14. Batteries for Golden Coins, Jordan and Mulryhill; Speranza Juniors, Jackson and Caplar.

The Auburndales have the finest outfield in the city in Nohl, A Weil and Smith. Isn't it a corker? Watch out for it in Sunday's game between Starrs and Auburndale.

The Rodgers and Connellys will cross bats at the Auburndale grounds Sunday, July 12, for $5 a side, and it will probably be one of the most exciting games played there yet.

The Ivys did not challenge the Speranzas for Presque Isle, they challenged them for Auburndale grounds. That shows that they are afraid to play the Ivys. Captain, Ivys base ball club.

We, the Athletics, hereby challenge the Speranzas for a game of ball to be played at Presque Isle, Sunday morning, July 19, for $2.25 or more. If accepted, answer through the BEE. Fred Belcher, captain.

The Starrs, jr, claim the championship of the city under 13 years of age, and challenge the Evening Stars, Strangers, or any other club whose members are under 13 years of age, Evening Stars preferred.

The Broadway B B C played a game of ball with the Starr, Jrs, or rather a gang of hoodlums, yesterday afternoon, and were defeated by a score of 23 to 17. The Starrs cheated the Broadways out of 10 runs. The Starrs had their usual gang of tough people, with a rotten umpire.

The Broadways, who claim they are under 13 years of age, but whose members are all over 14 years of age, were defeated by the Starrs, jr, whose members are all under 13 years of age, by a score of 23 to 16. The feature of the game was the hitting of the Starrs, jrs, having knocked out one of their crack pitchers, Newton.

New Jersey Wines Sent to Europe.

Mr. Speer, of New Jersey, has a reputation extending over the world as being a reliable producer of pure wines. His Port Grape wine is ordered by families in Dresden, London and Paris for its superior medicinal virtues, and its blood making quality, owing to the iron contained in the soil in which the grapes grow. Speer's Burgundy, Claret and Brandy are used in most hospitals.

ONE MASS OF SCALES

Afflicted 3 Years by Dreadful Skin and Blood Disease, with Intense Pain and Loss of Hair.

All Other Remedies Fail. Relieved Instantly and Cured in Four Weeks by the Cuticura Remedies.

I have a few words to say regarding the CUTICURA REMEDIES. They have cured me in four weeks' time from a Skin and Blood Disease which I have had for over three years. At certain times, my skin would be very sore, and always kept cracking and peeling off in white scales. In cold weather my face was one mass of scales. When in the cold air the pain was intense; it would almost bring tears to my eyes, and my blood also being in a poor condition, with a loss of hair. I have tried every known remedy that was recommended to me, but it was of no use, and gave me very little benefit. So, hearing of your CUTICURA REMEDIES, I concluded to give them a trial. The first application gave almost instant relief. In a few weeks' time I found myself cured, and I am thankful for what they have done for me. Your CUTICURA REMEDIES are a blessing to those who may have the opportunity to use them. I can recommend them to any one.
